THE BLAND BILL. PASSED TO-DAY

SENATE RESUMED THE DISCUSSION THIS MORNING.

Senator Cary, of Wyoming, Speaks Against the Measure—Error in the Tariff Bill Shuts Out Pork—Judge Jenkins Replies to the Investigating Committee.

WASHINGTON, March 15—[Special]—The senate proceeded this morning to the consideration of the Bland bill. Senator Cary of Wyoming, speaking against it. The measure as it stood providing for the coining of the seigniorage passed at 1 o'clock by a vote of forty-four yeas and thirty-one nays. In the house bill passed giving the officials in Oklahoma the right to lease the school lands. They then took up sundry civil bill as a committee of the whole. A discovery important to the public in general and to pork packers in particular has been made in the revised Wilson bill. Unless some change be made one of two things will happen—80 per cent of the raw sugar now imported by this country will continue to come in free or (2) the embargo which, prior to the operation of the reciprocity idea, shut out our pork products from European markets will be reimposed. The discovery, the accuracy of which is vouched for by Senators Voorhees and Vest of the general committee, is that should the bill become a law in its present shape the reciprocity agreements now existing between this country and Germany, Spain, Brazil and other countries will not be disturbed. The bill deprives the President of the power to negotiate further reciprocity agreements, but does not harm those now in force.

This clause in the senate bill is in section 106, which was section 89 in the house bill, and repeals section 3, which contains the reciprocity provision of the McKinley law. But it explicitly provides that "the repeal of existing laws or modifications thereof embraced in this act shall not affect any act done or any right accruing or accrued before the said repeal," etc., but all rights and liabilities under said laws shall continue and may be enforced in the same manner as if said repeal or modification had not been made."

A statement having been published to the effect that Mr. Caffery had given the representatives of the beet sugar industry in Kansas and Nebraska the assurance that he would introduce an amendment to the Senate bill directing the President to notify the countries with whom there are reciprocity treaties that all such treaties will be abrogated three months after the date on which the new tariff law goes into effect, Senator Caffery was asked if he contemplated such a course and replied that he did not, as he did not consider it would be necessary. "The proposed law," said he, "repeals the reciprocity clause of the McKinley law pro tanto, and any further proceedings would be useless."

The United States has reciprocity agreements made under the McKinley law with Brazil, Spain for the colonies of Cuba and Puerto Rico, Germany, San Domingo, Salvador, the British West Indian colonies, Nicaragua, Guatemala, Costa Rica, Honduras, France and her colonies, and Austria-Hungary.

ATTACKS THE RIVER COMMISSIONS.

Mr. Wilson Asserts That Contracts Are "Full of Public Plunder."

WASHINGTON, March 15.—No amendments of importance to the sundry civil bill were adopted yesterday, although northwestern members made a vigorous effort in the house to increase the amount for the survey of public lands. The appropriation for the geological survey, which usually encounters bitter opposition, passed unchallenged, the amount appropriated being $414,000. The bill was passed lending for one year the Spanish caravels Nina, Pinta and Santa Maria.

When the items were reached making appropriations for river and harbor improvements under the continuing contract system Mr. Wilson (rep., Wash.) created something of a sensation by his severe denunciation of the system and the various river commissions.

Mr. Broderick (rep., Kan.) wanted the item relating to the Missouri River commission passed over temporarily. Mr. Wilson insisted that these items should be thoroughly ventilated. He charged that these contracts were full of public plunder and wanted the work of the commissions analyzed and dissected.

After a few words in defense of the contract system of Mr. Dingley the Missouri river item was passed over in accordance with Mr. Broderick's suggestion

Mr. Coombs (dem. N. Y.) offered an amendment to set apart $250 for an appropriate stone for the grave of Capt. Samuel Reed, the designer of the American flag and one of the heroes of the war of 1812.

The house adjourned without taking any action.

FOR COLLECTION OF TAXES.

New Bill Defining Liability of Railways in Receivers' Hands.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—After considerable discussion the house judiciary committee has agreed on the terms of a bill to prevent interference in the collection of state, county and municipal taxes assessed against corporations and corporate property. The discussion of these matters had as its inception the recent railroad troubles that occurred in South Carolina. The bill agreed upon is as follows:

"That taxes assessed by the state, county or municipal authority against any corporation or corporate property shall not be classed as debts to be passed upon in the first instance by any court of the United States, but shall be collectable by the proper authorities of such state, county or municipality according to the assessment, whether such corporation be in the hands of receivers or not. A seizure as well as the sale of any property for the collection of any such taxes shall divest the receiver and the court of all control over the same; provided, that any and all property taken out of the hands of the receiver and from under the control of the court and not sold for such taxes shall be returned to the receiver and shall be again under the control of the court; and provided further that a corporation or a receiver of a corporation shall have the same right that a citizen of such state, county or municipality may have under the laws of such state to apply for the abatement of any tax, or to sue or defend on account of any alleged overassessment on improper assessment in any court having jurisdiction."

Judge Jenkins Heard From.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—Judge Jenkins, of the Seventh district of the United States Circuit court, has replied to Mr. Boatner, chairman of the congressional committee recently named to investigate Judge Jenkins' injunctions restraining employes of the Northern Pacific railroad from striking or labor leaders from directing such strike. The judge says that so far as the writs of injunction are concerned they are matters of the court record and that copies of the writs will be sent to the committee if they desire them. If, however, the committee intends to inquire into the charges affecting his personal or official integrity, Judge Jenkins says he will appear before the committee and will meet and refute the charges.

Judge Jenkins' reply is not satisfactory to those responsible for the forthcoming investigation. They pronounce it evasive. Chairman Boatner will leave to-day for Louisiana to be back on Tuesday or Wednesday. When he returns he will put the investigation into immediate operation. But whether he will hold it here or in Milwaukee he is at present unable to say.

In the Senate.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—Bland's seigniorage bill is as good as passed. Yesterday's votes in the senate on Allison's motion to reconsider in order that the bill might be opened to amendment, and on Manderson's motion to recommit were decisive. They show the bill will pass by practically a two-thirds majority. Allison's motion was voted down, 45 to 28, while Manderson's was defeated, 44 to 27. The vote on Allison's motion to reconsider is as follows: For reconsideration, democrats, 8; republicans, 20; populists, 0. Total, 28. Against reconsideration, democrats, 31; republicans, 12; populists, 3. Total 45.

Mr. Carey had not finished his remarks in opposition to the bill when the senate went into executive session and at 5:25 adjourned.

To Bring Suit for $40,000,000.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—One of the most important propositions yet submitted to congress will be presented to the house to-day by Representative Boatner of Louisiana. The proposition will cite numerous defaults of the Union Pacific railroad and continuous lines to meet the debt due the United States. It will direct, in the form of a joint resolution, that the president shall appoint special counsel to institute suit against the present and past directors, their heirs and legal representatives to collect $35,000,000 and interest due the United States. With interest the amount in litigation would exceed $40,000,000.

Tariff Proceedings Secret.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—The senate committee on finance failed again yesterday to reach an agreement as to when the tariff bill should be reported to the senate. Some of the members express the opinion, however, that it will be finally acted upon during the first days of next week. Several features of the bill were taken up at random, and on some of these the debate was very animated. Objection was made to the publication of the proceedings of the committee, and a resolution pledging the members to secrecy was adopted.

Important to American Wheat Growers.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—The bureau of the American republics is informed of a movement in Argentine Republic for a system of irrigation to obviate the disastrous effects of drouths in the agricultural districts. The production of wheat in Argentina is increasing by rapid bounds, the wheat exports jumping from 328,000 tons in 1890 to 1,000,000 tons in 1893, and it is claimed that the exports during the current year will reach 2,000,000 tons.

Chairman Wilson Weary of Mexico.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—Letters and telegrams have been received by members of Representative Wilson's family indicating his condition and the purpose of returning north. A dispatch from William H. Wilson, who is with his father, referred to the gloomy spells of the sick man, and his desire to get away from Mexico. He is not yet considered entirely out of danger.

NON-SUIT GRANTED IN THE ROSTER CASE

THE PLAINTIFFS AND DFFENDANTS ARE BLAMED ALIKE.

Question of Fraud on the Part of Defendants, However, Is Still Open—General Doe Shown To Have Known That There Would Be No Saving.

MADISON, March 15.—A non suit was granted in the roster suit this afternoon. The motion was made by Attorney Flanders, he urging that plaintiffs had not produced enough evidence to justify a verdict. Judge Siebecker granted the non suit. In the arguments defendants' attorneys practically conceded that there had been an attempt to "squeeze" the state but said that the plaintiffs were equally guilty. Almost entire morning session in the roster case was spent in urging the question of the admissibility of evidence to show that the defendants deceived plaintiffs by stating that the state was to save a dollar a volume on the contract. Mr. Jeffris made very strong speech in favor of the proposition stating that the fact that the plaintiffs were to make large profits was not the badge of fraud as they supposed it was saving money for the state. Olin and Flanders spoke also. The court ruled that the plaintiffs knew the contract was tainted because of the large profits and hence could not set up the attempt of the defendants to defraud. This ruling will practically kill the issue of conspiracy but will leave question of fraud on the defendants part still open. The granting for a motion for non suit came at 3 o'clock.

General Doe received a body blow yesterday when he was confronted with indisputable evidence that shortly before he engaged in the work of drawing up and promoting the secret roster contract he secured from the office of secretary of state and retained for nearly a week the state printing contract, under which the work could be done for one-third the secret contract price, and offered in evidence with it was General Doe's sworn denial of knowledge of the favorable terms of that same regular state contract.

That Colonel Clark had told two stories was also shown when Mr. Olin offered in evidence the subscriptive paper to stock in the Madison Times with Clark, C. E. Moseley, Clarence and F. F. Proudfit as subscribers. With it Mr. Chynoweth offered an accompanying document tending to show that the stock was subscribed in November instead of June, to which plaintiffs objected, because Colonel Clark had testified both ways as to the date in his deposition. The court allowed it to go in.

Defendants then offered additional part of Clark's deposition to show that he had turned his salary as private secretary over to Treasurer Hunner as part payment of $2,000 borrowed and which was part payment of the $5,000 he repaid to Tracy and the Dows. This caused a lawyers' controversy and the plaintiffs finally withdrew their objections and followed by offering the balance of Clark's deposition so far as it related to where and how he got the $5,000.

A NEW PARTY'S CRADLE.

In Lafayette Hall, the People's Progressive Organization Is Formed.

PITTSBURG, Pa., March 15.—Old Lafayette hall, the cradle of the republican party, was the scene yesterday of the formation of a new political organization. It will be known as the People's Progressive party, and is intended to amalgamate and unify all the reform parties now in existence. The prohibitionists will predominate, as nearly all those attending the meeting have been identified with the movement. A committee of 100 was appointed to continue the work of organization and hold another national convention, probably in Pittsburg, a year hence. The committee was instructed to push the work of securing signatures to a call for a general national convention in 1896, to nominate candidates for President and Vice-President of the United States.

Burned to Death in Their Home.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., March 15.—Near Elba, Coffee county, the charred remains of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Thomas were found in the embers of their home. They lived some distance from other houses, so that how the burning of their house or themselves occurred remains a mystery. It is known that the couple were misers and it is thought murder for money preceded the fire.

Iowa House Reconsiders.

DES MOINES, Iowa, March 15.—The house changed front yesterday and once more saved the vitality of the mulct bill by voting to reconsider the vote by which the 18th section was stricken out Tuesday. When the house convened Morrison, who had filed the motion for a reconsideration, call it up and after a short discussion it carried by a vote of 57 to 33.

Smallpox at Braidwood.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. March 15.—A case of virulent smallpox is reported as appearing in the family of Jan Smalick in Braidwood. The case is said to have been imported from Chicago.

MELLO ABANDONS HIS FOLLOWERS.

INSURGENT ADMIRAL SHOWS THE WHITE FEATHERS.

He Has Been Seen in Monte Video—Admiral Benham Ordered To Go to Bluefield To Protect American Industries—Rebel Soldiers To Be Pardoned.

RIO JANEIRO, March 15—[Special].—Admiral Mello has been seen on the streets of Monte Viedo. He has deserted his followers. Admiral Benham has been notified to proceed to Bluefield, Nicaragua, to protect American industries. President Peixoto has issued proclation decreeing amnesty for the rebel sailors and soldiers who surrendered unconditionally, giving up without firing a shot all the ships and fortified positions in the bay which had been in possession of the insurgents. But at the same time he in effect pronounces sentence of death upon Admiral Saldanha da Gama. Admiral Custodie de Mello, and all the officers associated with them in the rebellion. The president does not condemn them to be shot in so many words; he simply announces his determination to subject them to trial by court martial. The condemned chiefs of the revolt will have to be caught, however, before the death penalty can be inflicted. Admiral de Mello was seen in Montevideo a week ago. A report from Argentina says he, with the Aquidaban and Republica, is at Rio Grande, which is only seventy miles south of Rio.

MISS POLLARD ASSUMED NAMES.

Physician Remembers Her Under the Name "Louise Wilson."

WASHINGTON, March 15.—In the Pollard-Breckinridge case yesterday the major portion of the testimony taken had reference to the identity of the plaintiff with Miss Burgoyne and Louise Wilson. It was shown to the satisfaction of all present that at various institutions where she was cared for Miss Pollard took assumed names, as she declared, for the purpose of protecting the man who had ruined her. Two witnesses and a long deposition by Dr. Kate Perry of Cincinnati consumed this session, the only enlivening feature being the ruling out by Judge Bradley of irrelevant cross-examination by the defense.

The testimony of Sister Cecelia of Pueblo, Colo., formerly superior of the Norwood asylum, near Cincinnati, was resumed when the trial commenced. Replying to Attorney Carlise's questions Sister Cecelia said that she had a good memory for the names but a poor memory for faces. She could not affirm positively that Miss Pollard had been an inmate of the Norwood convent, nor could she say that she had not.

A dispute arose between counsel over the question of admission as evidence of the witness' opinion as to the identity of the young woman, and Judge Bradley ruled in favor of the defendant, the prosecution excepting.

The reading of a deposition by Kate Perry Kane of No. 62 Front street, Cincinnati, who had been in the spring of 1885 a member of the firm of Drs. Buchanan & Perry, was begun by Mr. Carlisle. Mrs. Kane remembered that Miss Pollard had boarded in their house as Dr. Buchanan's patient under the name of Miss Louise Wilson, identifying the plaintiff positively.

From the cross-examination in the deposition it appeared that Miss Pollard was described by Dr. Buchanan as "an unfortunate girl from Kentucky." The boarder was understood to be an unmarried woman, and once, after she had been to meet a friend at a hotel about some financial matters, Dr. Kane asked why she did not marry the friend, to which Miss Pollard replied that she could not; that he had ruined her and she loathed him; had steeled her heart against him and would not marry him although he had offered to marry her.

An affidavit by Mrs. Wesleyan Robertson, wife of William F. Robertson of Cincinnati and daughter of Dr. Brown, the president of Wesleyan Seminary in 1883 and 1884, was read by Mr. Carlisle. The deponent had been a student at the seminary when Madeline Pollard was there, had been given by Miss Pollard a letter to be opened the night of her graduation, in June, 1885. After much discussion as the propriety of its introduction the contested letter was read. It has been widely printed. She told of the offer of Rhodes to Miss Pollard, asked how she could ever marry the old rake, and announced her intention of telling Mrs. Brown, as she could not lead a secret life. After Miss Pollard's attorneys had expressed a desire for copies of the letter for purposes of their own the court adjourned.

Says the President Will Be Neutral.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—The Post says: "Members of the house who have conversed with the President upon the future of the seigniorage bill, in case that measure be passed by the senate, say he will allow the bill to become a law by holding it ten days after it has been received by him. He will not veto it, neither will he sign it."

New Mexico Statehood Bill.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—Delegate Joseph of New Mexico will endeavor to rally his forces Monday next.

BIG OMAHO DAM BREAKS.

Rushing Waters Sweep the Villages—Towns Submerged.

BOISE, Idaho, March 15.—News was received in this city yesterday that the Indian Creek reservoir had broken and was sweeping down upon ranches and villages, carrying destruction and ruin in its path. This reservoir was constructed of solid masonry at the head of Indian Creek to irrigate an orchard of 640 acres. The reservoir covered 500 acres. The dam cost $50,000. The country between Bysuka and Caldwell is all under water. Every railroad bridge between Nampa and Bysuka is washed out and many miles of railroad track is submerged, which will prevent trains from running over the Short line for many days. The dam broke about noon and messengers were sent at breakneck speed on horseback to warn the settlers and urge families to hasten to places of safety. A mighty wall of water came sweeping down Indian creek, bearing houses, sheep, calves, barns, farming utensils, and submerging whole farms. The citizens of Nampa, a little town on the Short line, saw the approach of the devastating waters and fled to high ground. Soon all the lower part of the town was under water from five to twenty feet deep. Fifty houses are ruined and many families are without shelter and bedding. It is reported here that two men were drowned, one while attempting to save his property and another who rushed to his assistance. The cause of the disaster was the sudden turn of the weather, coupled with heavy rains, which caused the rapid melting of the snow in the mountains. Snake river rose eight feet in one day. This part of Idaho has had the heaviest fall of snow this winter known for years, and this melting rapidly filled the creeks and burst the dam. So far Mountain Home reservoir is safe, but fears are entertained that it will share the fate of its Indian creek neighbor.

PATIENTS IN PERIL

Fire in an Insane Asylum at White Plains, N. Y.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., March 15.—The fire department of this village was summoned at 10 o'clock yesterday to Harrison, where several barns on the property of the St. Vincent Retreat for the Insane were burning. The flames threatened to reach the main building, where 100 inmates are cared for. The inmates were removed to a place of safety.

The fire was subdued before it reached the main building. The inmates of the retreat, about fifty in number, were conducted by the sisters in charge to a place of safety. They were terror-stricken by the fire, but none of them was injured. The loss on the buildings and property is estimated at about $30,000.

Eighteen Men Hurt at a Fire.

WEST SUPERIOR, Wis., March 15.—The Doud barrel factory and cooper shop was completely consumed yesterday with its contents. Forty coopers at work barely escaped with their lives. A number were seriously injured by jumping to the ice twenty feet below. The men lost all except what they wore. The loss was $25,000, with insurance of $9,000. This is the second time the shop has burned within a year. Those badly injured were: Philip Youst, Ted Chappel, Peter Wress, C. J. Thompson, A. E. Ladd and Joseph Schultz. At least a a dozen others were injured less seriously.

Cyclone on the Strip.

GUTHRIE, O. T., March 15.—Particulars have just reached here of a disastrous storm which devastated a small section of country in the Cherokee strip, southwest of Pawnee, Sunday evening. After a heavy rain the cyclone blew terribly for about ten minutes, leveling everything before it. Sixteen houses were wrecked and a large number of barns and other buildings were destroyed. A man named Johnson was badly injured, but so far as can be learned everybody else escaped with a few bruises and cuts.

Echo of the Ithaca Tragedy.

ITHACA, N. Y., March 15.—The coroner's jury impaneled to investigate the cause of the death of Henrietta Jackson, who died the night of the Cornell freshman banquet, brought in a verdict that she came to her death by the inhalation of chlorine or other irritant gas manufactured and introduced into the room where she was at work by a person or persons unknown. This ends the case.

Troops After the Depot Robbers.

GUTHRIE, Ok., March 15.—A telegram from Woodward says the war department has ordered out Lieut. Kirby Walker of Fort Supply, with twenty cavalrymen, to chase the men who robbed the Woodward depot safe of the $10,000 of government money destined to pay the soldiers at Fort Supply. It is believed Bill Dalton and Bill Doolan were the robbers.

Report on the Canadian Thistle.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—Assistant Secretary Dabney of the agricultural department in an official report says the Canadian thistle has infested 4,000 square miles of United States territory. He says it can be killed by letting sheep feed upon the young growth, while farmers can keep it out of their fields by planting rows of sunflowers. The plant is short-lived and produces no seed before the middle of August.

WOMEN RUN DOWN BY A DRUNKEN MAN

HORSE REINED UP ON SIDEWALK WITHOUT AVAIL.

With Yells To Encourage His Flying Horses, the Inebriated Driver Passed on, Leaving the Senseless Occupants of the Buggy Lying on the Ground.

BELOIT, March 15—Mrs. Chauncey Miller, Sr., and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Leonard Miller, and the latter's baby were run down and thrown from their carriage by drunken men while driving on School street. Mrs. Leonard Miller was quite badly hurt on her head and face, and H. Kreps, the driver of the wagon, will be arrested. Mrs. Miller heard the rattle of a wagon behind them and saw a team of horses driven by a drunken man running towards them. Fearing they would be run over, Mrs. Miller drove her horse almost onto the side walk, but the team followed their course and the wagon struck the buggy, knocking a wheel off and throwing the occupants out. The driver of the heavy wagon did not stop, but with a wild whoop he urged his horse to a greater speed and left them to get out their trouble as best they could.

To Meet Receiver Clark.

OMAHA, Neb., March 15.—Yesterday being the day before the battle there was much excitement among the 175 delegates from various Union Pacific organizations to the conference with Receiver Clark. At 10 o'clock to-day a delegation composed of one delegate each from the different organizations of railroad employes will meet Receiver Clark. This will be a preliminary meeting, and Mr. Clark will be asked just what he expects of the men, and the men will ascertain as nearly as possible just what may be expected from Mr. Clark.

Gov. Waite Calls Out the Militia.

DENVER, Colo., March 15.—At 10 o'clock last night Gov. Waite ordered the First Battalion National Guard, Chaffee Artillery, and Signal Corps to report at 1 o'clock to-day to Adjutant-General Tarsney at the armory. It is inferred that the governor intends to enforce his demand for the records of the police board and seat his new appointees by force if necessary. There is probability of many of the officers and men refusing to do duty.

Sensation at Cleveland.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, March 15.—The south end of the city is in a fever of excitement over the fact that a membership list of one of the leading American Protective association lodges has fallen into the hands of Catholics. A boycott has been declared by the latter against all merchants in that portion of the city whose names appear on the list, and as a result several of the merchants have withdrawn from the organization.

Discredit the Sydney Report.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., March 15.—The dispatch from Sydney about the bluffing of the American admiral by the captain of the Japanese man-of-war at Honolulu is not credited here. The steamer Arawa sailed from Honolulu for Sydney before the Australia sailed from San Francisco. None of the Honolulu correspondence up to March 4 mentions the Japanese episode, and it was not mentioned in the files of Hawaiian papers received here.

New Test for Tuberculosis.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., March 15.—Prof. Otto Lugger, in charge of the Minnesota experimental station at St. Anthony Park, has discovered what is likely to prove a valuable test for tuberculosis in cattle. Numerous experiments show that if the animal is healthy no rise in temperature will follow the injection of Koch's lymph, while if afflicted with tuberculosis, even in its incipient stages, there is a sudden rise in temperature.

Fatal Wreck on a Mountain Road.

BAKER CITY, Ore., March 15.—A passenger train, No. 2, east-bound on the Oregon Short Line, was ditched last evening near Mountain Home, Idaho, resulting in the death of the fireman, mail clerk and three tramps. PRIVATE HOSPITAL AT THE WINDSOR

DR. H. A. M'CHESNEY RENTS THAT L ARGE BUILDING.

It Contains Forty Rooms, Is Heated by Steam Throughout and Has Many Advantages—A Corps of Physicians Secured, Making It Possible To Take Up Other Specialties.

A sanitarium and private hospital is what Janesville has long needed. The project has frequently been discussed by physicians, but has never culminated. Janesville is easy of access and well located for an institution of this kind. There is no reason why chronic diseases cannot be treated as successfully here as in any city, and there are many reasons why people who are suffering from this class of diseases, should be induced to come to Janesville for treatment, instead of going to the larger cities. The matter of expense alone is well worth considering as that is always an important consideration with people who have frequently spent several fortunes in search of health:

Dr. H. A. McChesney, whose fame as a specialist is already recognized, closed a contract to-day for the Windsor hotel for a term of years, and will open the house April 1 as a private asylum and sanitarium. The Windsor is well adapted to this purpose and when fitted up will be one of the best sanitariums in the country. The house is modern in construction, containing forty rooms; is heated with steam throughout, and are excellent drainage system. The house is light and will ventilated, and in fact well adapted to the work for which it will be appropriated. Patients requiring surgical treatment or careful nursing, will be furnished with pleasant rooms and skillful medical care.

All ciasses of chronic diseases will be treated by skillful specialists, and the institution will be made a blessing to the city.

The Corps of Physicians.

Dr. H. A. McChesney will have charge of the sanitarium, while giving special attention to diseases of the eye, ear, nose throat and lungs. He has associated with him Dr. Willard McChesney, who graduated with high honors at one of the best medical colleges in Chicago, some years ago, and has since enjoyed an extensive practice; and also Dr. C. P. Coykendall, of Iowa City, a young man of fine ability and good experience in hospital work. Nervous diseases, diseases of women, rheumatism, tumors and all classes of chronic diseases, will be scientifically treated. Ruptures and piles will be treated, and a cure invariably guaranteed. The time has gone by when public opinion is against the specialist, or opposed to the man who advertises. The specialist who devotes his life to the study and treatment of of chronic diseases, is better qualified to treat them, than the man who given his time and attention to acute diseases. This proposition, no reasonable man will dispute; The man who advertises as a specialist, simply does what every successful business man does to secure business. It is just as honorable and just as important to say to the public through the press, "I make a specialty of diseases of the eye and ear or nervous diseases," as it is to say "I am a prepared to sell dry goods cheaper than any store in town," medical ethics to the contrary not withstanding.

Has Every Convenience.

Many a good physicians is eking out a miserable existance today because he is afraid to say to the public, "I have made a study of some particular class of diseases and can treat them successfully." Men who leave the public to find out their office hours by climbing stairs and reading their announcement on the door. All this may be ethical, but it is nonsensical in the extreme.

The McChesney sanitarium will be advertised, not only at home, but throughout the state. It will be conducted by men who believe in advertising, and who also belive that it is just as legitimate in the medical profession and in merchantile business. It will be manned by a staff of physicians thoroughly competent to treat chronic diseases. In short the management belie e that the city not only needs this kind of an institution, but that the citizen will appreciate it.

Dr. McChesney will occupy his office in the Wilcox block until the first of April, and after that date will be found at his new quarters in the Windsor. The house will be used as a sanitarium, and will also be the headquarters of the Dr. McChesney Medi cine Co. recently incorporated. The fact will be recognized that Dr. McChesney is permanently located here

SMART AND ENGLISH.

NEW WORDS OF PRAISE.

The Following Testimonial Speaks For Itself—It Is a Very Strong One.

CLINTON, JUNC., Wis., March 15, 94.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN: For the past five years I have been troubled with catarrh and deafness. One of my ears was completely deaf, and it was difficult for me to hear a conversation. Hearing of Dr. McChesney and his success in treating catarrh and deafness, I consulted him and for the past two months have been under his treatment. I am pleased to state that during that time I have been greatly benefited. My catarrh condition is greatly improved, and my hearing is much better than it has been for years. I can hear readily a conversation in an ordinary tone of voice. I cheerfully recommend Dr. McChesney to all who are suffering from catarrh in any form, believing him to be a specialist of rare merit.

News From South Turtle.

SOUTH TURTLE—The prayer meeting at Calvin Johnsons will be next week Thursday evening instead of this week. The Temperauce social was held at John Crocketts last Friday. Will and D. G. Smith played down below Rockton last Friday evening and Charles Gault and James Murray at Poplar Grove. Rev. Dexter preached in the Murray school house last Sabbath. School will commence next week. Lelia Adams is improving rapidly. Robins and blue birds are here. Lincoln Mosher is building a new house for his mother but the wind Saturday thought it would be a good idea to move it from its foundation.

CHIEFLY CHAFF.

Customer—Send a barrel of sugar up to my house and charge it. Grocer—Excuse me. The sugar trust is busted.

Professor—What a pity that this young lady has both her arms. She would otherwise be a real Venus of Milo.

Mazey—Do you believe it possible to tell fortunes with cards? Pipkin—Don't see why it shouldn't be; plenty have been lost that way.

Visitor—And which is the older, Tommy, you or Willie? Tommy—We're tie. Visitor, mystified—What do you mean by tie? Tommy—We're twins.

Mrs. Gumpps—What do you think of this? Professor Scraper says women make better violinists than men? Mr. Gumpps—Of course. They can't make so much noise.

Bliffers—Can't you run that typewriting machine without makihg such a terrible racket? Whiffers, who has a desk in the same office—Not when I'm writing to a man who called me a fool.

"Oh for some new-coined name by which to call him! Oh, for some name no other lips could give!" was the prayer of Violet until she married him. Now she is content to call him Old Beeswax.

Housekeeper—I don't see why a big, able-bodied man like you should be begging for a living. Tramp—To tell yeh th' truth, mum, folks is becomin' so hard-hearted that a gent has got ter be big an' able-bodied to beg without gettin' hurt.

"Perkins," said the little girl on Prairie avenue, "aren't you my nurse?" "Yes, Miss Florry," answered the middle-aged matron. "Then I want you to go in there where the doctor is," said Miss Florry, imperiously, "and be vax'nated in my place!"

GOOD MEN NAMED BY REPUBLICANS.

BIG CAUCUSES MADE NOMINATIONS LAST NIGHT.

Strong Tickets Were Named in Each Ward, and From the Interest Taken in the Primaries, Their Election Is Morally Certain—The Candidates Selected.

The republican caucuses were held in the several wards of the city last evening. They were much larger than the usual caucuses and might more properly be called meetings, as never before in the history of the party in Janesville have such large gatherings been witnessed at republican caucuses. The contest was centered on the candidate for city treasurer and while it was exciting in the extreme, bringing cut the full strength of all candidates, the best of feeling prevailed, and the result will be accepted as the expressed wish of the majority.

Candidates for ward offices were also nominated in each ward. These in each case are exceptionally good nominations, and indicate that the republicans are determined to show a bold and united front at the election. It is morally certain the republican ticket is a winner. The work in the several caucuses resulted as follows:

OLD WORLD ITEMS.

The families are smaller on the average in France and larger in Ireland than in any other European nation.

A picture recently unearthed in Egypt showing two men engaged in chess is thought by an antiquarian professor, Brugsch, to be 5,200 years old.

French paupers are provided for to a great extent by the funds arising from a ten per cent tax on theater tickets. This tax averages $13,000,000 a year.

A ventriloquist in Lancashire, England, amused himself by beating a handbag and mimicking the cries of a dog until a sympathetic man rushed at him and struck him so hard that he had erysipelas, for which he sued for damages. The defense claimed that the mimicry was so perfect that there was nothing else to do, and the court sided with him, not saying anything about costs.

FANNY RICE COMES HERE TONIGHT

"A Jolly Surprise" Will Cause a Janesville Audience To Laugh.

Fanny Rice and her peerless company will appear at the Myers Grand to-night. Everybody knows Fanny Rice, and every theater-goer knows what an excellent theater performance will be furnished to those who are fortunate enough to attend. Miss Rice's reputation has preceded her here, and she hardly needs an introduction to our readers. The fact that after three years on the road with the Carleton Opera Company and another three years at the New York Casino, she started on a starring tour which has proven one of the most successful in the history of the stage, speaks volumes for the clever little lady. It is impossible to sit through a performance of "A Jolly Surprise" without indulging in peal after peal of hearty and wholesome laughter. This may appear to be a broad statement, but our advice to all asceptics and dyspeptics is, "Go and be convinced."

NEW PANTOMIME OF "ROBINSON CRUSOE"

ONE OF THE LATEST OPERATIC PANTOMIMES.

It Is Now Amusing the Critical Theater Goers of London — The Play Has Many Good Parts—History Repeated in Satire.

[London Theatrical Letter.]

THE FIFTEENTH annual pantomime "Robinson Crusoe" at the Drury Lane theater is attracting the usual big crowds.

Sir Augustus has a hobby for processions, but the "History of England in Twenty Minutes" is an excellent idea. William the Conqueror lands at Hastings, and Rufus is duly plugged by an arrow off stage prompt side with every regard for historical tradition. King John signs the Magna Charta with a long pen that looks like a disused yard measure; and our native stock of monarchs follow in turn till an imitation Victoria Regina is revealed at the close and is greeted with hearty cheers. That is, I suppose it was an imitation of her majesty; but Sir Augustus is such a wonderful man you never know what he mightn't do.

FROM ROBINSON CRUSOE.

The title "Robinson Crusoe," a title, I believe, that has been used before in connection with a story book or something. However, that doesn't matter. The story as developed here is original enough in all conscience. Robinson, it seems, wasn't a rough, bearded man after all, but a pretty little lady who is called Ada Blanche on the program. Then there are the brothers Poluski. These gentlemen are not mentioned in De Foe's narrative, but they have a pretty good armful of the present version, and for something like the first ten minutes they monopolize all the laughing power in the house.

Crusoe goes on board ship. You see, if he hadn't gone on a ship he couldn't have been wrecked and there wouldn't have been any stories told about him. So he has to go on board ship, and when the wreck comes, advantage is taken of the fact to give us a glimpse of the bottom of the sea and what goes on down there. According to Sirarris it would appear that a large number of young ladies meet there for occasional dances in their very best clothes, and the scene as represented on the stage is really very beautiful. I should imagine that the ballet ladies at Drury Lane must receive extremely handsome salaries, though it is true they work very hard. Still, I work pretty hard myself, but I can't afford to wear three or four diamond rings at once.

Miss Marie Lloyd is Crusoe's sweetheart Polly, so she is; and she works at high pressure to amuse the children—for whom pantomimes are supposed to be produced. There comes a time when Polly, like all other good little girls, has to go to bye-bye, and lest there should be any doubt as to the thoroughness of the production, the stage is turned into Polly's bedroom.

Polly sits down, and with lazy nonchalance takes off the bodice of her dress, and with the same air of weariness unties a string in her waist

somewhere and waits for a minute, raising her arm, and unties another string. Then the people in the first row of the pit began to stand up and lean over the barrier, and then the children in the boxes sat back while their fathers crowded to the front. Then Polly reached for her nightdress and put it over her as she sat in the chair, and as soon as arrangements were completed she got up hurriedly and skipped into bed amid loud and prolonged cheers.

BISMARCK.

One of the Canine Family of Great Danes.

The Great Dane dogs which Bismarck takes with him on all his walks, and that are seen lying at his feet in pictures, are very gentle. They have the softest mouths in the world and will not harm any one. In fact, a Great Dane dog does not make the best watchman because he is so gentle. There are a few of these noble dogs in this country.

One day, not long ago, a Great Dane owned by a young girl was crossing Central Park, New York, when a laborer passed with a pail of beer. Instantly Bismarck, as the dog is named, ran after the man, and sticking his nose in the pail, drank it almost dry with two or three laps of his big tongue. The laborer was so frightened that he dropped the pail and ran. Bismarck is as tall as a Shetland pony of small size, and is a sort of drab in color. He is the prettiest Great Dane in this country.

CORBETT AND JACKSON.

Latest Developments in the Search for a Place to Fight.

There have been many reports of localities offering large purses for the Corbett-Jackson fight, and some of these are evidently made in good faith, but the most solid looking proposal comes from Mount Clemens, in Michigan. The following dispatch was received by Parson Davies last week. It is the report of the action of a committee authorized to take the necessary steps to secure the fight.

"Matters are shaping satisfactory. Eminent counsel doubtful about Strawberry island being in this state, as it is middle ground made during the past few years. Protection ample. Committee, every one of whom is perfectly responsible, are willing to guarantee purse of $45,000 and training expenses. E. R. EGNOW."

Mr. Davies met some members of this committee in Detroit, and he appears to be impressed with their earnestness in the matter.

"Parson" Davies has received a cablegram from Lord Lonsdale, who is taking exceptional interest in the match, and he says he will try to raise a purse in London for the fight. It is understood that neither of the fighters will agree to go across the water to box for a smaller purse than £5,000, which, allowing for the expenses to be incurred in taking the parties over, would mean less than $20,000 in this country. Lonsdale fully understands that and the offers, if any are made, will undoubtedly exceed that figure.

The "London Sportsman" says it learns on the authority of a friend of one of the principals that Jackson and Corbett have no idea of attempting to settle their contest in the United States. They do not care to be badgered by clubs and authorities as was the case in the Mitchell-Corbett match. The event is almost certain to be settled at the National Sporting club in London.

THE KENNEL.

The New York Collie club's newly-elected officers are: President, Jenkins Van Schaick; vice presidents, T. H. Terry and J. Pierpont Morgan; secretary and treasurer, J. D. Shotwell.

Count Howard, one of the most prominent English setters in the country, is dead. Pneumonia was the cause.

The rumor has gained some credence that the Philadelphia Kennel club has been prevailed upon to make a change of dates for its proposed show at Tattersalls to those claimed for the abandoned St. Louis show.

There is a probability that the American and Canadian Kennel clubs will arrive at some pleasant, reciprocal understanding whereby a mutual method of handling dog affairs will be agreed upon and a set of universal rules adopted which shall cater to the best interests of dog men on both sides of the border.

Life or Death?

It is of vital importance that it should be understood by persons whose kidneys are inactive that this condition of things is finally inductive of a state of the organs where life hangs in the balance. Bright's disease, diabetes, albuminuria are all diseases of a very obstinate characters in their mature stage, and all have a fatal tendency. They often baffle the most practised medical skill, and the most approved remedies of materia medica. But opposed at the outset—that is to say, when the kidneys begin to discharge their function inactively, with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the dangerous tendency is checked. Very useful, also, is this household medicine for those ailments of common occurrence, constipation, biliousness, dyspepsia and nervousness. It is a safeguard against malaria and averts chronic rheumatism.

A Whimsical Chap.

Once tried to quote Bulwer (was it Bulwer?) and said, "Great oakes from little toe corns grow," and altho' he didn't exactly quote he got there, got there as it were, with both feet, at least with a part of both.

"Toe be or not to be,' said Shakespeare, (or Bacon?) and he toe, may not be far off. Foot it over hill and dale, 'til you are weary and footsore, and you cannot find such bargains as we offer in building sites, Homesites, for on these and the prices of the same and terms, too, we always did "toe the mark." For some reason we are this spring getting onto the goods, the prices and the terms with both feet. And so, with Hamlet we soliloquize.: "The wonder grows", why people are not "up in arms" when the prices we quote are looked into. You can get a home, if you wish, so long as we are in the business; hard times don't count. If you are not earning so much money as you did last year, we will meet you; it don't matter.

Homesites and Homes are our fad; to help people get 'em is what we are on earth for, this time.

The main secret, we suppose, why we always get the major part of the real estate trade going, is that we own a large part of the property that we offer. Another part of the secret is, we deal every time so that our customer sends to us his or her friend when they want to deal.

Our beginnings here were not large, but so true it is that "Great oaks from little acorns grow," that the "birds of the air" have their homes,—build their nests,—in the result of our grain of mustard seed. Come over and roost with us. Yours very truly,

GEO. L. & SARAH H. CARRINGTON.

AS JERE MURPHY SEES IT.

Thanks to the early advent of spring there are other blue jays in town than those interested in the roster case.

That other Kentucky girl, the Star-Eyed Goddess of Reform, would also have public sympathy with her cause if she would begin an action for breach of promise against the remainder of the democratic party at this time.

Chairman Wall reckons with wise discretion. It is going to be much easier to demonstrate this year that the Wisconsin democracy cannot win without the aid of his genius than it would be to prove that the Wisconsin democracy can win with it.

In refusing to investigate the charges that senators speculated in sugar stocks while tariff legislation was pending, the United States senate displayed something akin to the high-minded statesmanship that must have actuated Governor Peck when he hoped to obliterate the roster jobbery by keeping the contract secret.

When The Milwaukee Journal stated that "the acquittal of Daniel Coughlin will convince a large number of people that it is the unexpected that always happens," it doubtless used a different process of reasoning than that which satisfies it in advance of the trial that a verdict to the effect that Governor Peck, et al, did not conspire to defraud Tracy and the Dows would acquit the state officers of the charge of conspiring to defraud the state—Madison Journal.

REY EL SANTA ANITA

Will Be One of the Contestants in This Year's American Derby.

The name of Rey El Santa Anita would look well in the list of American Derby winners beside those of Volante, Emperor of Norfolk, Spokane, Uncle Bob, Carlsbad and other animals that have added this classic to their laurels, says the Chicago Post. And horsemen are admitting the possibility of "Lucky" Baldwin's candidate doing the distance this year and beating his field. Those who say Rey El Santa Anita win the Lake View handicap at Washington Park last year, when he romped in ahead of Clara Bauer and Ed Corrigan's promising colt Vassal, heard considerable talk in the paddock about "Lucky" Baldwin's claims for the colt. Secret trials had been given the fine looking son of imp. Cheviot, and it was even said that he had worked five and a half furlongs in 1:05, which, of course, was considerable for even the most enthusiastic to believe. So persistent was the Baldwin crowd in declaring that the colt was of good mettle and really a deserving horse that the "inside bettors" had considerable money up on him at long odds to win the Lake View. It was a more pleasing surprise to these backers than the reward of following form.

REY EL SANTA ANITA.

THE TURF.

Jimmy Lambley has signed to ride for Marcus Daly at $3,500 for the season.

O'Neil and Eckert of Chicago have laid $20,000 to $500 against George V. Hankins' horse, Danton, for the American Derby.

D. J. Hume of Paris, Ky., sold to J. W. Mills of Boston the pacing mare, Blanche Louise, with a record of 2:10 by Red Wilkes, for $5,000.

John Hunter, chairman of the board of stewards of the recently organized New York Jockey club, has written President Van Kirkman of Nashville a letter in which he invites the committee appointed at the last meeting of the turf congress to take steps to bring about a national jockey club to meet the board at an early day.

JUST IN TIME.

A Lucky Discovery and Its Results.

There is probably no happier woman today than Mrs. A. D. Seitz, of Whitestone, L. I. She has lately attracted great attention, not only in her own town but for many miles around. As it is a subject which will most deeply interest everybody, she has been induced to make her experiences public. She writes the following letter to her fellow workers:

"I had suffered for three years or more with nervous prostration, nervous weakness of the heart and kidney disease. I was treated by different doctors, who told me that as I grew older my heart would grow weaker. I was giving up all hope of getting better and about made up my mind I could never recover.

MRS. A. D. SEITZ.

"I heard of the wonderful cures being performed by Dr. Greene's Nervura blood remedy and I determined to try it. I am very thankful I did so for it has cured me entirely. I was so bad I was afraid to leave the house.

"I would have bad spells at any time and would be very sick. I suffered awfully. I am well and strong now and can go away for days at a time. I feel like a different person and shall never be without Greene's Nervura. I strongly advise all the sick and suffering to take it.

Thousands of people who are not exactly sick are yet out of order or ailing in some way. They do not feel well and strong, do not eat or sleep well, are nervous and have no ambition for work or pleasure. You need the great spring medicine. Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. It will make you well. The spring is the best time to treat for any disease. Everybody needs a spring medicine and this is the best one known. It is the discovery of Dr. Greene, of 35 West 14th Street, New York City, the most successful specialist in curing nervous and chronic diseases. He can be consulted by all free of charge, personally or by letter.

SUCH IS LIFE IN CHICAGO.

The Mysterious Shadow That Shelters an Affectionate Young Couple.

On a certain west side corner lot in Chicago stands a tidy little cottage. The front gate is hardly 20 feet from the street lamp. On the side of the lamp next the gate is a round smear of black paint. A reporter was passing the corner one night, and he noticed that the street lamp was so painted that the deep shadow fell on the front gate of the lot in which stood the little cottage. This was a suspicious circumstance, and he felt sure there must be a story in it, so he asked the policeman on the beat, and of course the policeman could tell him.

"I know the girl very well," said the policeman. "She was mad enough when they put the lamp on that corner, because it made too much light in their front yard. The fellow works over there in the store, and they used to go to dancing school or something of that kind, and when they came home he would stand at the gate anywhere from 10 minutes to an hour. Of course after the lamp was there he couldn't do it without making a show of himself, so one night she told me he was going to paint the glass, and sure enough he did."

IN A RUSSIAN SANCTUM.

A Proofreader, Tired of Bad Copy, Gives a Lesson In Leaded Matter.

A tale of tragedy comes from Moscow. Managing Editor Choledkoff, of an unpronounceable newspaper, the name of which would be Gazette in English, was mortified beyond endurance one morning upon picking up the paper at his breakfast table to find that the fiend of a proofreader had left out about a third of the consonants that should have bristled through a complimentary notice of the czar.

The proofreader knew that was not in consonance with the paper's policy, and Editor Choledkoff knew he knew it. Therefore he was the more wrath. Had there been only a few of the rough corners broken off the names of some of the naval officers or the inspectors of police, or had the proofreader left off the "off" of the editor's own name, it would have been passable. But the bulling of a complimentary personal of the czar was a serious matter. The czar's feelings might be hurt, and he might cause the secret police to hurt the editor's feelings. Therefore the editor resolved for the four hundredth time to fire the proofreader.

And this time he was in earnest. But somehow the prroofreader got the drop on him and fired first. The ball took effect in the leg of the table. Still the editor would not relent. He was determined to fire the proofreader, and the proofreader fired again. This time the ball entered the chest of the editor and passed through his lungs, and he died. Having dyed his hand with the blood of the chief, the proofreader then went in to get even with those of the staff who had made him the scapegoat of their excuses for bad breaks in copy for years. Standing in the door of the editorial room, he began firing right and left and winged three assistant editors before he ceased. Then he went out and surrendered to the police.—Philadelphia Press.

Death Dealing Weapons.

The Armstrong company has shown some very interesting experiments with the latest ordnance. A 6 inch gun was fired four times in 20 seconds and an 8 inch gun three times in 30 seconds. A torpedo was driven satisfactorily with cordite as a powder. There was a searchlight which would keep its beam upon an object no matter how violently the vessel rolled.

A 10 inch 30 ton gun, when it was fired, opened the breech screw by the recoil and wound up a spring, which, when released, would close the breech again. A 4 7-10 field howitzer anchored itself after the discharge by driving a spade shaped plate into the ground, after which its recoil was met by a jacket which surrounds it.

A quick firing field gun, which anchors itself in a similar manner, fired five rounds of shrapnel in 53 seconds. A 15 pounder mountain howitzer could be taken to pieces so that no part of it would weigh more than 200 pounds. It is screwed together in five minutes. A 6 inch gun, with light portable disappearing mountings for a long siege strain, could be taken apart so that no portion weighed more than three tons, 10 hours being required to mount it.

A 6 inch naval gun fired five times in 69 seconds, each time at a different range and target. A plate of special steel designed for a shield received rifle and gatling gun fire at 100 yards' range without a single penetration, while the plate hitherto used was penetrated at every shot, the gatling gun almost cutting it in two.—Chicago Herald.

Forgot His Temporary Name.

It is not an unusual thing for a man sojourning in a big city to come home to his hostelry so fatigued that he is not sure about his own name, but a guest in the Palmer House found himself in a stranger predicament than that.

A well dressed gentleman with a close cropped beard walked up to the cashier and asked for his bill. He wanted to make a train in 15 minutes.

"What is the name?" asked the cashier.

A startled look came on the guest's face, and mumbling some excuse for not answering the clerk's question he turned away and paced up and down for a minute or two.

Then he rushed to the register and scanned its pages eagerly, but without any apparent relief. The hotel people began to regard him with suspicion, but Mr. Townsend finally approached him kindly and asked what was the matter. Then the guest confessed. He said he had come to the hotel the day before and had registered under an assumed name.

"There are some people," said he, "whom I did not want to know I was here, but I have forgotten the name I put on your register."

The books were overhauled, and the name was found in time to enable the man to reach his train. The name he had used was M. M. Short, but he told nobody his real cognomen.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

The Heat of the Sun.

The mechanical energy of one square yard of the sun's surface would keep an ocean steamship under full headway. If all the coal of the earth were put into one large heap and kindled with an unlimited supply of oxygen for its combustion, it would not give out heat sufficient to replace that lost by the sun in one-thousandth part of a second of time. In the ball of flaming matter which we call the sun clouds of carbon are continually rising to the surface and remain there to glow with inconceivable intensity.

By the help of photography, aided by the spectroscope, the cloudy surface of the sun can now be examined. Previously the corona, which really is a crown of fiery tongues of flame, many of them 50,000 miles in length, could only be seen during an eclipse, but now we have photographs which show these flames to be ever darting forth and flickering from the sun's disk. These mighty flames occupy a quarter of an hour in performing a single flicker.—New York Ledger.

Cotton Factory Mechanisms.

Two very effective mechanisms in an improved form have lately been introduced in cotton manufactories, with a large gain in the facility and amount of work accomplished. One of these devices is a combination of feeder and opener, both built together, making one machine, solid, heavy, compact, with feed easily regulated by a lever on the side changeable in less than a minute and with a hopper holding about 350 pounds. Another device of special ingenuity is an automatic cleaning trunk connecting opener and breaker, having an arrangement which removes all dirt from the trunk as fast as it accumulates, being at once discharged into the dustroom by means of an exhaust fan, thus effecting a great saving in time and labor over the old way, besides the assurance that the trunk is always in a position to do the largest amount of work in the best possible manner.—New York Sun.

The Name Wisconsin.

The name of the state of Wisconsin is derived from a mixture of French and Indian. It was formerly spelled Ouis-con-sin, which means "westward flowing."

THE PRISONERS' FRIEND.

Mrs. Miller Tries to Save the Innocent and Reform the Guilty.

Mrs. Martha A. Miller has for many years been known in Chicago as "the prisoners' friend," and her face is well known in all the criminal institutions of that city. Her method of work is quiet, but effective. She visits a jail and talks with the prisoners, picking out those who have been deserted by their friends. For these she does errands and work outside the jail. She investigates their stories, and if they are found worthy of belief she goes into court and pleads for them. She collects witnesses, and it is her one purpose above others that no innocent man shall suffer.

She does not shun the hardened men of crime. "It is those," said she, "that I think it does most good to work with. Kindness accomplishes wonders with them. It is a thing which is strange to their beings. Every man is their enemy. They look at the world as a cheerless place. Their influence counteracted and kept away from others is what is most desired in a movement for reform."

The novitiate is sought after to be reclaimed before hope of virtue is gone. To enumerate the boys that have been persuaded from their evil ways by the "prisoners' friend" would be difficult. Mrs. Miller's work has not been entirely confined to prisons and jails. She is well known in the hospitals, where she has worked faithfully. She has gone among the slums and by force of moral suasion, in which she has the greatest faith, she has sought out girls and put them in the way of better lives.

Mrs. Miller is the pioneer prison reformer of America, and for 40 years she has been engaged in the work. In St. Louis in 1854, when she was scarcely 20 years old, a young man with whose parents she was very well acquainted was sentenced to a term in the penitentiary for larceny. She knew him to be innocent, but despite all effort he was taken to Jefferson City. Mrs. Miller drew up a petition, took it from house to house in St. Louis and obtained many signatures. Then she conveyed it to the state capital and laid it before the governor. Her first effort was successful. This experience with criminals interested her in the cause.

Spurred on by success, she determined to devote herself to work in the prison. She studied out the question on two lines—that poverty would diminish with crime and with it suffering; that the redemption of the hardened from their ways and the turning back of the tyro in crime to the beaten path was the only true kind of charity.

After a long work in St. Louis Mrs. Miller moved to Davenport, Ia., where she lived until she went to Chicago in 1882. Her fame had spread, and she held a place of honor among philanthropists. The first work Mrs. Miller did after she moved to Chicago was to begin an investigation of the penitentiary at Joliet. She called to the minds of the people the iniquity of the prison whipping post. Public opinion was aroused, and the whipping post was banished. Prison reform began in earnest. The work did not stop with prisons, but went to the lockups and jails.

Mrs. Miller does not believe in punishment for crime and calls the prison and the jail schools of crime and the alma maters of burglars and murderers. "Of course," she says, "there are some men who are vicious and a menace to society, and something should be done with them. Society has to be protected; I appreciate that. Insane asylums are humane and worthy institutions. I believe that penitentiaries make more crime. The more that crime is flaunted before the eyes of women and children, the more occasion there will be for punishment. Crime transmits itself. What we ought to do is to restrain and educate our criminal class. Prison discipline is worth more a thousand times than the grated cells, the high walls and the prison guards."

WHO IS IN THE FIELD AGAINST FATHERS?

STRIFE FOR THE CITY TREASURER'S JOB.

Probability That There Will Be Two Men in the Race Against the Republican Nominee—E. H. Davies Named as a Possibility—Geo. H. Bates Suggested.

Janesville republicans are now in line for victory. The ward nominations were made with an enthusiasm that speaks for success in ever sylable. Caucuses the magnitude of those held last night cannot indicate anything else. Democrats are flocking to the republican side of the fence as is shown by the membership roll of the Young Men's Republican club which last night contained nearly two hundred names. Among the signers are many democrats who have changed front and one who has been influential in the democratic ranks, not only signed himself but got five democratic friends to do the same. Already the opposition are trying to split the republican ranks, but the "A. P. A." war cry of the democratic campaign will avail nothing, as will be realized when the result is proclaimed. The republican ward nominations are made and every man on the ticket will be recognized as a staunch republican, entitled to the united vote of the party. The city ticket will be named tomorrow afternoon, and the Gazette is satisfied like good results will be found in the wake of that convention. The democratic organ is simply endeavoring to divert public opinion from the shortcomings of its own party, but will fail.

ALL REPUBLICANS NOT A. P. A.

Fourth Ward Correspondent Writes the Gazette Concerning the Statement Made.

EDITOR GAZETTE:—The article in the Recorder this morning does a great injustice to the Fourth ward republicans by saying that no one would be allowed to vote hereafter in the Fourth ward caucuses but A. P. A. Republicans. But it is about as correct as the substitute reporter with banged hair ever gets anything. Of course you cannot blame a good republican for not wanting the caucuses filled up with democrats as the Fourth ward caucus was last night. The knowing nothing Recorder should let up on trying to make people believe that no one but A. P. A's. were republicans. A FOURTH WARD REPUBLICAN.

ENTHUSIASM FOR JUDGE BENNETT

People Who Had No Opportunity to Sign The Call Plenty.

In the heat of the local campaign the judicial election is not forgotten.

"No one presented the call for Judge Bennett to me to sign," said Colonel W. B. Britton this morning, "consequently my name is not on his list, but you may say that the list published, although quite large, does not contain all of those who are supporting the Judge for re-election. I propose to vote for him anyhow."

"So do I," remarked D. Greatsinger, who stood near by. "I did not see the call, but intend voting for the judge just the same." A dozen or more whose names are not on the call, expressed the same sentiments.

POLLED 1006 VOTES AT CAUCUSES.

Biggest Attendance Ever Know In the History of the City.

Some idea of the large attendance at the several ward caucuses may be gained when it is known thar there were over one thousand votes polled in the several wards. The exact figures as given by the tellers are as follows:

First ward, 242.
Second ward, 199.
Third ward, 305.
Fourth ward, 198.
Fifth ward, 62.

This gives a total of 1006 votes, being the largest vote ever cast at republican primaries in the city. In some of the wards the division of the vote was very close, while in others the result was very decisive.

SALE FOR MANSFIELD BEGINS.

That Janesville is looked upon now as one of the most prosperous cities in the state of Wisconsin is again demonstrated by the announcement that Richard Mansfield has been secured for a performance at Myers Opera House, Saturday night, March 24, the management having succeeded in securing one of three open nights the eminent actor had between the closing of his engagement at the Grand Opera House, Chicago, and his opening date in St. Paul, Minn. Of course great risks had to be taken as Mr. Mansfield very rarely visits cities the size of Janesville, but Manager Shunk has often expressed his confidence in the patronage of Janesville people for A No 1 attractions and there is no doubt that his enterprise will meet with a packed house on the night of March 24. Seats can now be secured by applying at King & Skelley's.

Mushrooms attain their growth before appearing above ground. If the soil of a mushroom locality is carefully scraped off in the fall of the year, there will often be found full grown mushrooms, just beneath the surface, waiting for a favorable night to shoot above the earth. A cool, clear night in the autumn is the best, and after one of these typical autumn nights, fully grown mushrooms will be found in the greatest abundance, where, on the evening before, not one was to be seen.

CHIEFLY CHAFF.

W.—How do you tell the age of a hen? V.—By the teeth. W.—But a hen hasn't any teeth. V.—No, but I have.

"How many foreign languages can your wife speak?" "Three—French, German and the one she talks to the baby."

Maude—You know that horrid Miss Squillers? Genevieve—Yes. Maude—Well, I got even with her yesterday. Invited her to my pink tea and she's a blonde that can't stand anything but blue.

Reader of Comic Paper, sighing—O, would that I were in the Alps, 3,000 feet up! Visitor—And why do you wish that? Reader of Comic Paper—Because no chestnut is ever found at that height.

Jenks—I handled $4,000,000 during my recent visit to the treasury in Washington. Binks—Ah! But I have had my grip upon $150,000,000! Jenks—Where! When! How? Binks—I once shook hands with Vanderbilt!

Pat. has offered his school-fellow a bite from his apple, and is astonished at the large piece measured off by Mike's teeth. "Here, I say, hold on there, hold on!" Then, correcting himself, "when I say 'hold on' I mean 'let go!'"

"Do you see that man over there? Well, he's one of the famous men of the day." His companion looked at the speaker suspiciously. "Who is he?" he asked. "The man who was cured of catarrh?" "No; better than that. He's the man who hasn't had the grip."

Little Boy—They won't ever get me to give another ten cents toward a present of a book for the teacher. Mother—What went wrong? Little Boy—We gat the principal to select one for her, and he picked out one that was jus' crowded with information, and she's been teachin' it to us ever since.

Fogy—Our paper to-day published the true story about that mysterious murder in Blank street. Hustler—Pooh! We printed the story two days ago. Fagy—But you were entirely wrong in everything you published. Every statement you made was as far from the truth as it could possibly be. Hustler—What of that, so long as we got the scoop on all the other papers?

Cradles in Zululand.

When it is remembered that the chief work of a Zulu woman in South America is tilling the ground to grow mealies for food and tobacco, and that during this occupation the baby is ever present, it will be readily understood that the cradle is an important item. As a matter of fact these women do this arduous work with a heavy, growing child slung across the back. With the poorer classes of women the cradle is simply a white strip of some soft skin, which is passed around the waist in such a manner as to leave a kind of pocket behind, and in this the child will peacefully slumber, unmindful of the sudden and abrupt movements necessitated by the work. The wife of a chief, however, will have a much more elaborate affair, but will carry the child in the same fashion.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Treasurer Murphy issued the following card this afternoon:

Believing that the action at the caucus last night was not an expression of the republican party, I do hereby announce myself an independent candidate for the office of city treasurer. M. MURPHY.

SOME MYSTERIES IN INSURANCE.

Many Remarkable Cases of Swindling Brought to Light.

DEATH SUCCESSFULLY SIMULATED

The Remarkable Performances of an English Woman—How a Frenchman Took Charge of His Own Funeral—The Monson, Meyer and Austin Cases.

NE of the most fertile fields of wicked ingenuity is the swindling of life insurance companies, either by simulated death or outright murder. The records of the insurance companies for the past 50 years furnish many instances of frauds, and three notable cases of recent date have attracted widespread interest. In the case of Lieutenant Hambrough, who was mysteriously shot in Scotland, Monson, who was charged with murdering him, has been acquitted by a Scotch verdict of "not proven" and is likely to collect the $100,000 insurance on the young lieutenant's life. The fate of Dr. Meyer, who is accused of making a business of poisoning men and women and collecting insurance on their lives, has not yet been decided.

A more recent case is that of John C. Austin, whose heirs were awarded $16,752.50 in New York the other day in a suit brought against the Mutual Reserve Fund Life Insurance association. In the summer of 1891 Austin insured his life for $15,000 and three days later was reported drowned at Coney Island. His clothes were found in a bathhouse, but the body was never found, and there was some unusual—not to say suspicious—circumstances connected with the alleged drowning. The insurance company was not satisfied with the proofs of death, and the heirs brought suit. At the trial the defendants produced a witness who claimed to have seen Austin in the Adirondacks a year after his disappearance and introduced a photograph of Austin in hunting costume alleged to have been taken in 1892. But the jury decided that Austin was dead.

Up to date the attempted frauds on life insurance companies are, first, the very rare one of pretended death, which may be artificially induced by certain drugs; second, false certifications through bribery or forgery; third, false personation of the applicant and deception of the medical examiner and substitution of a dead body. The only case of successfully simulated death on record occurred in England many years ago, and, strange to say, the same woman went through the simulated death performance on three distinct occasions between intervals of many years, and her "husband" or "father" or "brother," who was partner in the schemes, was the same man on each occasion. The pair were successful in each instance.

In the first attempt the man was a poverty stricken gentleman of the suburbs of London, then a gambling army officer of Queen square and finally a Liverpool merchant. Life insurance men in speaking of the case say that so successful a series of frauds by the same person appears wonderful at the present day, and that the woman either possessed that power of simulating death of which there have been a few remarkable instances in history or that the physician was bribed.

One Franz Tomatscheck in Berlin some time back was heavily insured. The funeral took place. But when a disinterment was had the contents of the coffin were found to consist of stone and straw, and it was ascertained that Tomatscheck, impelled by irresistible curiosity and disguised beyond recognition, had attended his own funeral.

Here is another and a most remarkable case of the same kind. In 1865 a wine merchant in Bordeaux, France, named Vital Douat, insured his life for 100,000 francs in the Paris office. Then he went to London. His widow a little later presented herself at the insurance office with the legal documentary proof of her husband's death. The company somehow "smelt a rat" and investigated. It seems that when Douat went to London he put up at Ford's hotel under the name of Roberti. While there he got a French waiter to write him out a certificate in English, purporting to be signed by Dr. Critti, to the effect that Vital Douat had died on the 29th of November, 1865, of aneurism of the heart.

This certificate was presented to the register of deaths at Plaistow by Douat himself. The certificate was registered, it being stated that the body was then lying at 32 Ann street, Plaistow. On that very day Douat procured a certificate from the register of deaths, and thereupon the sexton of St. Patrick's cemetery at Low Layton ordered a grave to be dug. Douat under the name of Bernardo then paid the burial fee and designated the following Sunday for the funeral. He then under the name of Rubini coolly went to an undertaker and purchased a full size coffin, in which he placed a thick lining of lead. Douat had the coffin conveyed to the cemetery from a certain house, he himself being the chief and only mourner. In the chapel of the cemetery, Rev. Father McQuaid officiating, the "remains" of Douat were consigned to the earth.

It was Sergeant Druscovitch of the London police who found all this out. But when the sergeant made his discoveries Douat had come to this country beyond his reach. Douat was doomed, however. In 1866 he went to Antwerp, where he attempted to obtain from insurance companies a big sum of insurance on goods shipped on a vessel. He produced invoices representing that the cases and barrels contained $50,000 worth of cloaks and laces. The cases got ignited on the dock, and, lo and behold! they developed into two barrels of tar, and the cases were found to contain rosin, chips, alcohol, powder and charcoal. He was sentenced to death, but the French government claimed him under the extradition act, and for his attempted fraud on the Paris Life Insurance company he was sentenced to penal servitude when it got him.

Here is an interesting drowning case: D. K. Boswell of Muncie, Ind., on Sept. 15, 1871, started for St. Louis with his wife. He purchased two tickets for $3,000 each, good for 10 days, of the Railway Passenger company of Hartford. His life was insured for $10,000 in the Franklin Life of Indianapolis. He was president of the local board of the company at Muncie, and he was so highly thought of that he was not only made president of the board, but when he insured his life for $10,000 the company did not ask for a cash payment of the premium or the policy, but took his note for six months. Boswell and his wife on Sept. 22, 1871, left St. Louis on the steamer St. Luke. At midnight Mrs. Boswell gave the alarm that her husband had fallen overboard while sick. "I saw Mr. Boswell falling backward and overboard," she said. "I sprang to catch him where he sat on the rail with one arm round the stanchion, but could not. I saw him reach the water, there was a splash, and all was over." Search for the dead body was made. It was never found. The agent of one of the life companies James Boswell had insured himself in wrote to the company, "Boswell was one of our best citizens, of the best habits, respected and esteemed by all who knew him."

The Franklin company was sued by the widow. The verdict was in her favor for $11,000. This was set aside and a new trial granted. Boswell had now been "dead" three years. The case was again to come up. This was in 1874. About this time there was Judge I. S. Howe in Galesburg, Ills. He was playing croquet with some ladies one day when two gentlemen recognized him as the long lost Boswell. He admitted it and suddenly went south, leaving his trunk as security for a loan of $200.

It was plain that Mrs. Boswell was in the scheme, as it was proved that she had visited "Judge Howe" in Galesburg and had passed there as his neice. She was arrested, tried and convicted and sentenced to prison. Boswell was captured in Michigan in July, 1874, and escaped punishment on the technicality that a man and wife could not conspire.

Here is a case that completely outdoes Meyer if he is guilty of what he is charged with: William Palmer lived in Rugely, a little town on the line of the Northwestern railway, England. In 1856 he was a fine looking man, 35 years old. He married the beautiful daughter of Colonel Brooks of the East India service. The girl's mother had received from the colonel a life lease of his estate. Palmer was a fast liver. He loved horse racing and had a private laboratory where he made various chemical experiments. When short of funds one day, he appealed to Mrs. Brooks. She went to live with her daughter at once. She died suddenly four days after she reached the Rugely home. By her death Palmer's wife became owner of the Brooks estate, but under his control. He now lived a faster life than ever. Four of his children, like Mrs. Brooks, died suddenly, with intervals of one or two years between the death of each. There remained one. At the mother's death the estate would pass to that little one.

Palmer had his wife's life insured for $75,000. A sporting friend of Palmer's, named Bladen, called upon him soon afterward to collect a debt of $3,500. He fell sick at Palmer's house and died. Palmer's "family physician" said the cause was cerebral fever. A year afterward Mrs. Palmer took sick and died. The "family physician" made out the death certificate, and soon afterward the London life companies paid the $75,000. Palmer then had his brother Walter's life insured for $65,000. The brother was a hard drinker. Palmer, the chemical experimenter, gave him gin to drink, and he died shortly. He then applied for the insurance; but, strange to say, when the companies refused to settle he never renewed the application. But Palmer was such a good man! No neighbor suspected he would do a wrong act.

In November, 1855, John Parsons Cook's horse won at the Shrewsbury races $10,000, beating Palmer's. The latter had bet heavily, and his losses were great. Besides he had forged notes to the extent of $65,000, and exposure threatened him. Cook was worth $60,000, and Palmer had obtained Cook's signature to many notes. He got Cook to visit his (Palmer's) Rugely house that month (November). Palmer gave Cook something to drink and gave him some pills. He died two days afterward. The "family physician" said the cause was apoplexy. The post mortem revealed evidences of poison. Palmer was tried for murder and found guilty and was hanged. The body of Mrs. Palmer had been by this time 15 months in the grave. It was exhumed. It was found that she had died from the effects of antimony, which was detected in all parts of the body. The body of the brother Walter was exhumed. It was found that prussic acid had killed him.

Palmer's high social position and the medical certificates had prevented the life insurance companies from suspecting any wrongdoing. Just before the revelations as to Cook's death Palmer had tried to insure the life of his groom, George Bates, for $125,000. Palmer, in his application, described Bates as a "gentleman of independent means." He had also at the same time tried to have the life of the postmaster of Rugely insured for $20,000. The denouement in the Cook case consequently saved their lives.

Temperance women of Norway asked the public authorities a short time ago to make it unlawful for women or girls to serve in public houses. The request has been granted, and at present an alehouse keeper cannot employ any other woman than his wife.

SOME REMARKABLE DREAMS.

A Warning and a Few Cases of Thought Transference.

A New Hampshire woodsman tells the following story, which he appears to believe implicitly: "This winter I was at work for Van Dyke at Connecticut Lake. The night was dark and rainy, and the wind howled and moaned in the tree tops. I went to bed at 9 o'clock. Directly opposite my bunk was a window that one could see out of. I could not sleep and kept rolling and tumbling. I think I must have got into a drowse, for I was awakened by a light shining into the window, and a woman's face appeared as if looking in. I am sure it was the countenance of my sister who died in Quebec two years ago.

"Strange to say, I was not scared. The light disappeared, and then again it shone in. This time the woman's hand appeared at the window beckoning me to come. I got up and pulled on my trousers and went to the door. By this time the wind had stopped blowing, the rain had ceased, and the moon shone through the clouds at times. Standing near the woodpile was my sister. I recognized her now. I stepped toward her, but she motioned me back, saying, 'Joe, don't work tomorrow,' and vanished. I saw no more of her that night. The next day I staid in camp, and before noon Bill was brought in dead. A limb had fallen and broken his skull. He and I worked together. My sister has come to save life once since. Boys, this is God's truth."

The following cases of suggestion in dreams are related in Kate Field's Washington: A lady dreamed that a man came into her room, poured some water into a basin, carried the splashing water to her bedside and began to sprinkle it over her. She awoke and heard a loud splashing. At first she was motionless with fear, but presently she lighted a candle and went to the basin, where she found a mouse making frantic efforts to get out of the water.

A young man dreamed that he was in his office, busy with a troublesome estimate, when a woman came in with a screaming baby and began to walk rapidly up and down the room, so that it was impossible for the calculator to remember his figures. Presently the woman thrust the child into his arms, and he was so startled by this that he awoke. But the screams still troubled his ears, for a mother in a neighboring room was walking about vainly trying to quiet a crying child.

Another incident appears to be a case of thought transference. Several years after the death of her husband a widow, lying awake one night, recalled vividly some scenes of her husband's last illness. Presently her daughter, who was beside her, awoke and said, "Oh, mamma, I have been going over in my dreams all the scenes of papa's illness." She then told her dream, in which the scenes were almost the counterpart of those that had been recalled by her mother.

THIS SETTLES IT.

The Hawaiian Problem Elucidated by a Pair of Chicago Philosophers.

"Well, there's still a good deal of talk about this Hiwayan business," said the man from Jackson boulevard after he and his neighbor had found a good place in a Madison street car, within earshot of a Chicago Record reporter.

"Yes, that's so," said the neighbor, "and I wish they'd settle it one way or another. It's getting to be darned tiresome."

"It would have been settled a long time ago if it hadn't been for that man Blount. When he landed those soldiers there, he might have known it would have caused trouble."

"Was it Blount did that? I thought it was this fellow Thurston."

"No; my recollection is that Thurston was the man who pulled down the American flag and came near getting into a scrap with—ah"——

"Lillikalana?"

"Yes, that's it. She wants to join the United States, I guess."

"No; I think you are mistaken about that. I haven't read up on it very closely, but it's my impression she wants to take all these fellows that overthrew her and have their heads chopped off."

"That's right, and Cleveland said he was willing, didn't he?"

"No, no. You see, Cleveland was simply trying to square things, and he wanted her to agree to let these fellows alone."

"What was it his business?"

"Well, you see, he was afraid some other country would jump in and get the islands."

"What if they did? From what I can hear the United States doesn't want to admit Hahway. There's only a few white men there. It's too far away anyhow."

"How far out in the ocean is it?"

"Oh-h-h, I guess it must be a matter of something like 500 miles."

"Humph! I suppose if they admitted Haweeah it would send in a lot of congressmen with feathers in their hair and grass tied around their legs."

"What's the name of this fellow that's over there now?"

"Willis, isn't it?"

"Yes, that's it. Now, what is it he's trying to do?"

"Well, from what I've heard he's trying to jolly up the queen and keep her from bringing a damage suit against Cleveland."

"Why, what did Cleveland do?"

"Don't you know? He agreed to put her back on the throne, and then when he failed to do it she claimed that she hadn't been treated right."

"That's so. I remember reading something about that. And Willis is over there now trying to square Cleveland?"

"That's it exactly."

"Oh, yes!"

"How do you think it will all end?"

"Oh, I don't know. I suppose she'll go on the lecture platform."

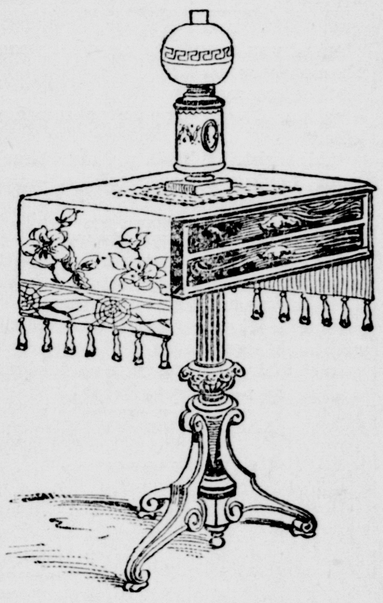

"I wouldn't be surprised."

Wingate—It must be a queer kind of etiquette they teach at that young ladies' boarding school Miss Flyrte has just graduated from. Walker—Why so? Wingate—Oh, nothing, only I kissed her in the hallway in the dark the other night and she said "Thanks!"

At the supper table Mr. Wade mentioned a tragic circumstance that he had read that day in the newspaper. A passenger on a trans-Atlantic steamer had fallen overboard in mid-ocean and had never been seen again. "Was he drowned?" asked Mrs. Wade. "Oh, no; of course not," said Mr. Wade. "But he sprained his ankle," I believe."

Praises Come, Unlimited, Heralding the Success of One Woman's Work.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

From all sections of this great country. No city so large, no village so small, but that some woman has sent us her words of joyful thanks for health restored.

From San Francisco Mrs. Detwiler writes, from her Laurel Ave. home, that she unwisely left her room all too soon when her baby was born.

The result was an aggravated case of displacement of the womb that wholly prostrated her.

The doctors tried medicines, apparatus, and she suffered everything.

"I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. The effect was wonderful, and, thanks alone to her, I am now well."

Mrs. Kate Morris, 100 Mulberry St., New York, says:—

"For years I suffered with womb trouble. I was so sick and nervous that I could not stand or sit, the pains through my back made me crazy. I tried several doctors but found no relief. I was advised to try your Vegetable Compound. I did, and to-day I am a well woman."

From far-away Texas comes word from Mrs. Jennie Arthur of the town of Taylor:

"I did not know what rest was for months. I was so dizzy and faint at times I thought I was dying, and, oh, how my back did ache! I am a living witness of the miraculous effects of Mrs. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Relief came with it at once. I sleep allnight, and am now as well as ever in my life."

From the great state of Pennsylvania, Mrs. L. Travis, of Thurlow, tells a similar story of utter misery resulting from womb trouble; all the fearful results of this dread trouble was upon her when the Lydia Pinkham Vegetable Compound came to change the whole current of her life, and she ends up her letter by declaring: "I owe all to you." Thousands of other names are here. Let your faith lead you to the certain remedy for all your troubles. Your druggist has it for you.

THE BLAND BILL. PASSED TO-DAY

SENATE RESUMED THE DISCUSSION THIS MORNING.

Senator Cary, of Wyoming, Speaks Against the Measure—Error in the Tariff Bill Shuts Out Pork—Judge Jenkins Replies to the Investigating Committee.

WASHINGTON, March 15—[Special]—The senate proceeded this morning to the consideration of the Bland bill. Senator Cary of Wyoming, speaking against it. The measure as it stood providing for the coining of the seigniorage passed at 1 o'clock by a vote of forty-four yeas and thirty-one nays. In the house bill passed giving the officials in Oklahoma the right to lease the school lands. They then took up sundry civil bill as a committee of the whole. A discovery important to the public in general and to pork packers in particular has been made in the revised Wilson bill. Unless some change be made one of two things will happen—80 per cent of the raw sugar now imported by this country will continue to come in free or (2) the embargo which, prior to the operation of the reciprocity idea, shut out our pork products from European markets will be reimposed. The discovery, the accuracy of which is vouched for by Senators Voorhees and Vest of the general committee, is that should the bill become a law in its present shape the reciprocity agreements now existing between this country and Germany, Spain, Brazil and other countries will not be disturbed. The bill deprives the President of the power to negotiate further reciprocity agreements, but does not harm those now in force. This clause in the senate bill is in section 106, which was section 89 in the house bill, and repeals section 3, which contains the reciprocity provision of the McKinley law. But it explicitly provides that "the repeal of existing laws or modifications thereof embraced in this act shall not affect any act done or any right accruing or accrued before the said repeal," etc., but all rights and liabilities under said laws shall continue and may be enforced in the same manner as if said repeal or modification had not been made."

A statement having been published to the effect that Mr. Caffery had given the representatives of the beet sugar industry in Kansas and Nebraska the assurance that he would introduce an amendment to the Senate bill directing the President to notify the countries with whom there are reciprocity treaties that all such treaties will be abrogated three months after the date on which the new tariff law goes into effect. Senator Caffery was asked if he contemplated such a course and replied that he did not, as he did not consider it would be necessary. "The proposed law," said he, "repeals the reciprocity clause of the McKinley law pro tanto, and any further proceedings would be useless."

The United States has reciprocity agreements made under the McKinley law with Brazil, Spain for the colonies of Cuba and Puerto Rico, Germany, San Domingo, Salvador, the British West Indian colonies, Nicaragua, Guatemala, Costa Rica, Honduras, France and her colonies, and Austria-Hungary.

ATTACKS THE RIVER COMMISSIONS.

Mr. Wilson Asserts That Contracts Are "Full of Public Plunder."

WASHINGTON, March 15.—No amendments of importance to the sundry civil bill were adopted yesterday, although northwestern members made a vigorous effort in the house to increase the amount for the survey of public lands. The appropriation for the geological survey, which usually encounters bitter opposition, passed unchallenged, the amount appropriated being $414,000. The bill was passed lending for one year the Spanish caravels Nina, Pinta and Santa Maria.

When the items were reached making appropriations for river and harbor improvements under the continuing contract system Mr. Wilson (rep., Wash.) created something of a sensation by his severe denunciation of the system and the various river commissions.

Mr. Broderick (rep., Kan.) wanted the item relating to the Missouri River commission passed over temporarily. Mr. Wilson insisted that these items should be thoroughly ventilated. He charged that these contracts were full of public plunder and wanted the work of the commissions analyzed and dissected.

After a few words in defense of the contract system of Mr. Dingley the Missouri river item was passed over in accordance with Mr. Broderick's suggestion

Mr. Coombs (dem. N. Y.) offered an amendment to set apart $250 for an appropriate stone for the grave of Capt. Samuel Reed, the designer of the American flag and one of the heroes of the war of 1812.

The house adjourned without taking any action.

FOR COLLECTION OF TAXES.

New Bill Defining Liability of Railways in Receivers' Hands.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—After considerable discussion the house judiciary committee has agreed on the terms of a bill to prevent interference in the collection of state, county and municipal taxes assessed against corporations and corporate property. The discussion of these matters had as its inception the recent railroad troubles that occurred in South Carolina. The bill agreed upon is as follows:

"That taxes assessed by the state, county or municipal authority against any corporation or corporate property shall not be classed as debts to be passed upon in the first instance by any court of the United States, but shall be collectable by the proper authorities of such state, county or municipality according to the assessment, whether such corporation be in the hands of receivers or not. A seizure as well as the sale of any property for the collection of any such taxes shall divest the receiver and the court of all control over the same; provided, that any and all property taken out of the hands of the receiver and from under the control of the court and not sold for such taxes shall be returned to the receiver and shall be again under the control of the court; and provided further that a corporation or a receiver of a corporation shall have the same right that a citizen of such state, county or municipality may have under the laws of such state to apply for the abatement of any tax, or to sue or defend on account of any alleged overassessment on improper assessment in any court having jurisdiction."

Judge Jenkins Heard From.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—Judge Jenkins, of the Seventh district of the United States Circuit court, has replied to Mr. Boatner, chairman of the congressional committee recently named to investigate Judge Jenkins' injunctions restraining employes of the Northern Pacific railroad from striking or labor leaders from directing such strike. The judge says that so far as the writs of injunction are concerned they are matters of the court record and that copies of the writs will be sent to the committee if they desire them. If, however, the committee intends to inquire into the charges affecting his personal or official integrity, Judge Jenkins says he will appear before the committee and will meet and refute the charges.

Judge Jenkins' reply is not satisfactory to those responsible for the forthcoming investigation. They pronounce it evasive. Chairman Boatner will leave to-day for Louisiana to be back on Tuesday or Wednesday. When he returns he will put the investigation into immediate operation. But whether he will hold it here or in Milwaukee he is at present unable to say.

In the Senate.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—Bland's seigniorage bill is as good as passed. Yesterday's votes in the senate on Allison's motion to reconsider in order that the bill might be opened to amendment, and on Manderson's motion to recommit were decisive. They show the bill will pass by practically a two-thirds majority. Allison's motion was voted down, 45 to 28, while Manderson's was defeated, 44 to 27. The vote on Allison's motion to reconsider is as follows: For reconsideration, democrats, 8; republicans, 20; populists, 0. Total, 28. Against reconsideration, democrats, 31; republicans, 11; populists, 3. Total 45.

Mr. Carey had not finished his remarks in opposition to the bill when the senate went into executive session and at 5:25 adjourned.

To Bring Suit for $40,000,000.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—One of the most important propositions yet submitted to congress will be presented to the house to-day by Representative Boatner of Louisiana. The proposition will cite numerous defaults of the Union Pacific railroad and continuous lines to meet the debt due the United States. It will direct, in the form of a joint resolution, that the president shall appoint special counsel to institute suit against the present and past directors, their heirs and legal representatives to collect $35,000,000 and interest due the United States. With interest the amount in litigation would exceed $40,000,000.

Tariff Proceedings Secret.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—The senate committee on finance failed again yesterday to reach an agreement as to when the tariff bill should be reported to the senate. Some of the members express the opinion, however, that it will be finally acted upon during the first days of next week. Several features of the bill were taken up at random, and on some of these the debate was very animated. Objection was made to the publication of the proceedings of the committee, and a resolution pledging the members to secrecy was adopted.

Important to American Wheat Growers.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—The bureau of the American republics is informed of a movement in Argentine Republic for a system of irrigation to obviate the disastrous effects of drouths in the agricultural districts. The production of wheat in Argentina is increasing by rapid bounds, the wheat exports jumping from 328,000 tons in 1890 to 1,000,000 tons in 1893, and it is claimed that the exports during the current year will reach 2,000,000 tons.

Chairman Wilson Weary of Mexico.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—Letters and telegrams have been received by members of Representative Wilson's family indicating his condition and the purpose of returning north. A dispatch from William H. Wilson, who is with his father, referred to the gloomy spells of the sick man, and his desire to get away from Mexico. He is not yet considered entirely out of danger.

NON-SUIT GRANTED IN THE ROSTER CASE

THE PLAINTIFFS AND DFFENDANTS ARE BLAMED ALIKE.

Question of Fraud on the Part of Defendants, However, Is Still Open—General Doe Shown To Have Known That There Would Be No Saving.

MADISON, March 15.—A non suit was granted in the roster suit this afternoon. The motion was made by Attorney Flanders, he urging that plaintiffs had not produced enough evidence to justify a verdict. Judge Siebecker granted the non suit. In the arguments defendants' attorneys practically conceded that there had been an attempt to "squeeze" the state but said that the plaintiffs were equally guilty. Almost entire morning session in the roster case was spent in urging the question of the admissibility of evidence to show that the defendants deceived plaintiffs by stating that the state was to save a dollar a volume on the contract. Mr. Jeffris made very strong speech in favor of the proposition stating that the fact that the plaintiffs were to make large profits was not the badge of fraud as they supposed it was saving money for the state. Olin and Flanders spoke also. The court ruled that the plaintiffs knew the contract was tainted because of the large profits and hence could not set up the attempt of the defendants to defraud. This ruling will practically kill the issue of conspiracy but will leave question of fraud on the defendants part still open. The granting for a motion for non suit came at 3 o'clock.

General Doe received a body blow yesterday when he was confronted with indisputable evidence that shortly before he engaged in the work of drawing up and promoting the secret roster contract he secured from the office of secretary of state and retained for nearly a week the state printing contract, under which the work could be done for one-third the secret contract price, and offered in evidence with it was General Doe's sworn denial of knowledge of the favorable terms of that same regular state contract.

That Colonel Clark had told two stories was also shown when Mr. Olin offered in evidence the subscriptive paper to stock in the Madison Times, with Clark, C. E. Moseley, Clarence and F. F. Proudfit as subscribers. With it Mr. Chynoweth offered an accompanying document tending to show that the stock was subscribed in November instead of June, to which plaintiffs objected, because Colonel Clark had testified both ways as to the date in his deposition. The court allowed it to go in.

Defendants then offered additional part of Clark's deposition to show that he had turned his salary as private secretary over to Treasurer Hunner as part payment of $2,000 borrowed and which was part payment of the $5,000 he repaid to Tracy and the Dows. This caused a lawyers' controversy and the plaintiffs finally withdrew their objections and followed by offering the balance of Clark's deposition so far as it related to where and how he got the $5,000.

A NEW PARTY'S CRADLE.

In Lafayette Hall, the People's Progressive Organization Is Formed.

PITTSBURG, Pa., March 15.—Old Lafayette hall, the cradle of the republican party, was the scene yesterday of the formation of a new political organization. It will be known as the People's Progressive party, and is intended to amalgamate and unify all the reform parties now in existence. The prohibitionists will predominate, as nearly all those attending the meeting have been identified with the movement. A committee of 100 was appointed to continue the work of organization and hold another national convention, probably in Pittsburg, a year hence. The committee was instructed to push the work of securing signatures to a call for a general national convention in 1896, to nominate candidates for President and Vice-President of the United States.

Burned to Death In Their Home.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., March 15.—Near Elba, Coffee county, the charred remains of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Thomas were found in the embers of their home. They lived some distance from other houses, so that how the burning of their house or themselves occurred remains a mystery. It is known that the couple were misers and it is thought murder for money preceded the fire.

Iowa House Reconsiders.

DES MOINES, Iowa, March 15.—The house changed front yesterday and once more saved the vitality of the mulct bill by voting to reconsider the vote by which the 18th section was stricken out Tuesday. When the house convened Morrison, who had filed the motion for a reconsideration, call it up and after a short discussion it carried by a vote of 57 to 33.

Smallpox at Braidwood.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. March 15.—A case of virulent smallpox is reported as appearing in the family of Jan Smalick in Braidwood. The case is said to have been imported from Chicago.

MELLO ABANDONS HIS FOLLOWERS.

INSURGENT ADMIRAL SHOWS THE WHITE FEATHERS.

He Has Been Seen in Monte Video—Admiral Benham Ordered To Go to Bluefield To Protect American Industries—Rebel Soldiers To Be Pardoned.

RIO JANEIRO, March 15—[Special].—Admiral Mello has been seen on the streets of Monte Viedo. He has deserted his followers. Admiral Benham has been notified to proceed to Bluefield, Nicaragua, to protect American industries. President Peixoto has issued proclamation decreeing amnesty for the rebel sailors and soldiers who surrendered unconditionally, giving up without firing a shot all the ships and fortified positions in the bay which had been in possession of the insurgents. But at the same time he in effect pronounces sentence of death upon Admiral Saldanha da Gama, Admiral Custodie de Mello, and all the officers associated with them in the rebellion. The president does not condemn them to be shot in so many words; he simply announces his determination to subject them to trial by court martial. The condemned chiefs of the revolt will have to be caught, however, before the death penalty can be inflicted. Admiral de Mello was seen in Montevideo a week ago. A report from Argentina says he, with the Aquidaban and Republica, is at Rio Grande, which is only seventy miles south of Rio.

MISS POLLARD ASSUMED NAMES.

Physician Remembers Her Under the Name "Louise Wilson."

WASHINGTON, March 15.—In the Pollard-Breckinridge case yesterday the major portion of the testimony taken had reference to the identity of the plaintiff with Miss Burgoyne and Louise Wilson. It was shown to the satisfaction of all present that at various institutions where she was cared for Miss Pollard took assumed names, as she declared, for the purpose of protecting the man who had ruined her. Two witnesses and a long deposition by Dr. Kate Perry of Cincinnati consumed this session, the only enlivening feature being the ruling out by Judge Bradley of irrelevant cross-examination by the defense.

The testimony of Sister Cecelia of Pueblo, Colo., formerly superior of the Norwood asylum, near Cincinnati, was resumed when the trial commenced. Replying to Attorney Carlise's questions Sister Cecelia said that she had a good memory for the names but a poor memory for faces. She could not affirm positively that Miss Pollard had been an inmate of the Norwood convent, nor could she say that she had not.

A dispute arose between counsel over the question of admission as evidence of the witness' opinion as to the identity of the young woman, and Judge Bradley ruled in favor of the defendant, the prosecution excepting.

The reading of a deposition by Kate Perry Kane of No. 62 Front street, Cincinnati, who had been in the spring of 1885 a member of the firm of Drs. Buchanan & Perry, was begun by Mr. Carlisle. Mrs. Kane remembered that Miss Pollard had boarded in their house as Dr. Buchanan's patient under the name of Miss Louise Wilson, identifying the plaintiff positively.

From the cross-examination in the deposition it appeared that Miss Pollard was described by Dr. Buchanan as "an unfortunate girl from Kentucky." The boarder was understood to be an unmarried woman, and once, after she had been to meet a friend at a hotel about some financial matters, Dr. Kane asked why she did not marry the friend, to which Miss Pollard replied that she could not; that he had ruined her and she loathed him; had steeled her heart against him and would not marry him although he had offered to marry her.

An affidavit by Mrs. Wesleyan Robertson, wife of William F. Robertson of Cincinnati and daughter of Dr. Brown, the president of Wesleyan Seminary in 1883 and 1884, was read by Mr. Carlisle. The deponent had been a student at the seminary when Madeline Pollard was there, had been given by Miss Pollard a letter to be opened the night of her graduation, in June, 1885. After much discussion as the propriety of its introduction the contested letter was read. It has been widely printed. She told of the offer of Rhodes to Miss Pollard, asked how she could ever marry the old rake, and announced her intention of telling Mrs. Brown, as she could not lead a secret life. After Miss Pollard's attorneys had expressed a desire for copies of the letter for purposes of their own the court adjourned.

Says the President Will Be Neutral.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—The Post says: "Members of the house who have conversed with the President upon the future of the seigniorage bill, in case that measure be passed by the senate, say he will allow the bill to become a law by holding it ten days after it has been received by him. He will not veto it, neither will he sign it."

New Mexico Statehood Bill.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—Delegate Joseph of New Mexico will endeavor to rally his forces Monday next.

BIG OMAHO DAM BREAKS.

Rushing Waters Sweep the Villages—Towns Submerged.

BOISE, Idaho, March 15.—News was received in this city yesterday that the Indian Creek reservoir had broken and was sweeping down upon ranches and villages, carrying destruction and ruin in its path. This reservoir was constructed of solid masonry at the head of Indian Creek to irrigate an orchard of 640 acres. The reservoir covered 500 acres. The dam cost $50,000. The country between Bysuka and Caldwell is all under water. Every railroad bridge between Nampa and Bysuka is washed out and many miles of railroad track is submerged, which will prevent trains from running over the Short line for many days. The dam broke about noon and messengers were sent at breakneck speed on horseback to warn the settlers and urge families to hasten to places of safety. A mighty wall of water came sweeping down Indian creek, bearing houses, sheep, calves, barns, farming utensils, and submerging whole farms. The citizens of Nampa, a little town on the Short line, saw the approach of the devastating waters and fled to high ground. Soon all the lower part of the town was under water from five to twenty feet deep. Fifty houses are ruined and many families are without shelter and bedding. It is reported here that two men were drowned, one while attempting to save his property and another who rushed to his assistance. The cause of the disaster was the sudden turn of the weather, coupled with heavy rains, which caused the rapid melting of the snow in the mountains. Snake river rose eight feet in one day. This part of Idaho has had the heaviest fall of snow this winter known for years, and this melting rapidly filled the creeks and burst the dam. So far Mountain Home reservoir is safe, but fears are entertained that it will share the fate of its Indian creek neighbor.

PATIENTS IN PERIL

Fire in an Insane Asylum at White Plains, N. Y.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., March 15.—The fire department of this village was summoned at 10 o'clock yesterday to Harrison, where several barns on the property of the St. Vincent Retreat for the Insane were burning. The flames threatened to reach the main building, where 100 inmates are cared for. The inmates were removed to a place of safety.

The fire was subdued before it reached the main building. The inmates of the retreat, about fifty in number, were conducted by the sisters in charge to a place of safety. They were terror-stricken by the fire, but none of them was injured. The loss on the buildings and property is estimated at about $30,000.

Eighteen Men Hurt at a Fire.

WEST SUPERIOR, Wis., March 15.—The Doud barrel factory and cooper shop was completely consumed yesterday with its contents. Forty coopers at work barely escaped with their lives. A number were seriously injured by jumping to the ice twenty feet below. The men lost all except what they wore. The loss was $35,000, with insurance of $9,000. This is the second time the shop has burned within a year. Those badly injured were: Philip Youst, Ted Chappel, Peter Wress, C. J. Thompson, A. E. Ladd and Joseph Schultz. At least a a dozen others were injured less seriously.

Cyclone on the Strip.

GUTHRIE, O. T., March 15.—Particulars have just reached here of a disastrous storm which devastated a small section of country in the Cherokee strip, southwest of Pawnee, Sunday evening. After a heavy rain the cyclone blew terribly for about ten minutes, leveling everything before it. Sixteen houses were wrecked and a large number of barns and other buildings were destroyed. A man named Johnson was badly injured, but so far as can be learned everybody else escaped with a few bruises and cuts.

Echo of the Ithaca Tragedy.

ITHACA, N. Y., March 15.—The coroner's jury impaneled to investigate the cause of the death of Henrietta Jackson, who died the night of the Cornell freshman banquet, brought in a verdict that she came to her death by the inhalation of chlorine or other irritant gas manufactured and introduced into the room where she was at work by a person or persons unknown. This ends the case.

Troops After the Depot Robbers.

GUTHRIE, Ok., March 15.—A telegram from Woodward says the war department has ordered out Lieut. Kirby Walker of Fort Supply, with twenty cavalrymen, to chase the men who robbed the Woodward depot safe of the $10,000 of government money destined to pay the soldiers at Fort Supply. It is believed Bill Dalton and Bill Doolan were the robbers.

Report on the Canadian Thistle.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—Assistant Secretary Dabney of the agricultural department in an official report says the Canadian thistle has infested 4,000 square miles of United States territory. He says it can be killed by letting sheep feed upon the young growth, while farmers can keep it out of their fields by planting rows of sunflowers. The plant is short-lived and produces no seed before the middle of August.

WOMEN RUN DOWN BY A DRUNKEN MAN

HORSE REINED UP ON SIDEWALK WITHOUT AVAIL.

With Yells To Encourage His Flying Horses, the Inebriated Driver Passed on, Leaving the Senseless Occupants of the Buggy Lying on the Ground.

BELOIT, March 15—Mrs. Chauncey Miller, Sr., and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Leonard Miller, and the latter's baby were run down and thrown from their carriage by drunken men while driving on School street. Mrs. Leonard Miller was quite badly hurt on her head and face, and H. Kreps, the driver of the wagon, will be arrested. Mrs. Miller heard the rattle of a wagon behind them and saw a team of horses driven by a drunken man running towards them. Fearing they would be run over, Mrs. Miller drove her horse almost onto the side walk, but the team followed their course and the wagon struck the buggy, knocking a wheel off and throwing the occupants out. The driver of the heavy wagon did not stop, but with a wild whoop he urged his horse to a greater speed and left them to get out their trouble as best they could.

To Meet Receiver Clark.

OMAHA, Neb., March 15.—Yesterday being the day before the battle there was much excitement among the 175 delegates from various Union Pacific organizations to the conference with Receiver Clark. At 10 o'clock to-day a delegation composed of one delegate each from the different organizations of railroad employes will meet Receiver Clark. This will be a preliminary meeting, and Mr. Clark will be asked just what he expects of the men, and the men will ascertain as nearly as possible just what may be expected from Mr. Clark.

Gov. Waite Calls Out the Militia.

DENVER, Colo., March 15.—At 10 o'clock last night Gov. Waite ordered the First Battalion National Guard, Chaffee Artillery, and Signal Corps to report at 1 o'clock to-day to Adjutant-General Tarsney at the armory. It is inferred that the governor intends to enforce his demand for the records of the police board and seat his new appointees by force if necessary. There is probability of many of the officers and men refusing to do duty.

Sensation at Cleveland.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, March 15.—The south end of the city is in a fever of excitement over the fact that a membership list of one of the leading American Protective association lodges has fallen into the hands of Catholics. A boycott has been declared by the latter against all merchants in that portion of the city whose names appear on the list, and as a result several of the merchants have withdrawn from the organization.

Discredit the Sydney Report.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., March 15.—The dispatch from Sydney about the bluffing of the American admiral by the captain of the Japanese man-of-war at Honolulu is not credited here. The steamer Arawa sailed from Honolulu for Sydney before the Australia sailed from San Francisco. None of the Honolulu correspondence up to March 4 mentions the Japanese episode, and it was not mentioned in the files of Hawaiian papers received here.

New Test for Tuberculosis.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., March 15.—Prof. Otto Lugger, in charge of the Minnesota experimental station at St. Anthony Park, has discovered what is likely to prove a valuable test for tuberculosis in cattle. Numerous experiments show that if the animal is healthy no rise in temperature will follow the injection of Koch's lymph, while if afflicted with tuberculosis, even in its incipient stages, there is a sudden rise in temperature.

Fatal Wreck on a Mountain Road.

BAKER CITY, Ore., March 15.—A passenger train, No. 2, east-bound on the Oregon Short Line, was ditched last evening near Mountain Home, Idaho, resulting in the death of the fireman, mail clerk and three tramps. A freight train on the same road last evening ran over a cow two miles west of Durkee and the engine and six cars were derailed.

A 12-Year-Old Murderer.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., March 15.—Arthur Cardwell, 12 years of age, shot and instantly killed "Pat" Patterson here. Patterson and T. C. Cardwell, father of young Cardwell, were in a fight in the latter's store, and young Cardwell ran behind the counter, seized a revolver and fired, shooting Patterson through the heart.

Small Wreck on the Milwaukee Road.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., March 15.—A freight train on the Milwaukee railroad was wrecked at Westcott, fifteen miles south of here, last evening, the caboose and five cars going over an embankment. Conductor Cyrus O. Johnson and a passenger named Shaal were seriously injured.

Denver Meeting Declared Off.

DENVER, Colo., March 15.—The Denver Cycling club has fixed Aug. 31 and Sept. 1 for its annual race meeting. This fixture not having received the sanction of the L. A. W. racing board, the Denver meeting will be declared off.

PRIVATE HOSPITAL AT THE WINDSOR

DR. H. A. M'CHESNEY RENTS THAT LARGE BUILDING.

It Contains Forty Rooms, Is Heated by Steam Throughout and Has Many Advantages—A Corps of Physicians Secured, Making It Possible To Take Up Other Specialties.

A sanitarium and private hospital is what Janesville has long needed. The project has frequently been discussed by physicians, but has never culminated. Janesville is easy of access and well located for an institution of this kind. There is no reason why chronic diseases cannot be treated as successfully here as in any city, and there are many reasons why people who are suffering from this class of diseases, should be induced to come to Janesville for treatment, instead of going to the larger cities. The matter of expense alone is well worth considering as that is always an important consideration with people who have frequently spent several fortunes in search of health:

Dr. H. A. McChesney, whose fame as a specialist is already recognized, closed a contract to-day for the Windsor hotel for a term of years, and will open the house April 1 as a private asylum and sanitarium. The Windsor is well adapted to this purpose and when fitted up will be one of the best sanitariums in the country. The house is modern in construction, containing forty rooms; is heated with steam throughout, and are excellent drainage system. The house is light and will ventilated, and in fact well adapted to the work for which it will be appropriated. Patients requiring surgical treatment or careful nursing, will be furnished with pleasant rooms and skillful medical care.

All classes of chronic diseases will be treated by skillful specialists, and the institution will be made a blessing to the city.

The Corps of Physicians.

Dr. H. A. McChesney will have charge of the sanitarium, while giving special attention to diseases of the eye, ear, nose throat and lungs. He has associated with him Dr. Willard McChesney, who graduated with high honors at one of the best medical colleges in Chicago, some years ago, and has since enjoyed an extensive practice; and also Dr. C. P. Coykendall, of Iowa City, a young man of fine ability and good experience in hospital work. Nervous diseases, diseases of women, rheumatism, tumors and all classes of chronic diseases, will be scientifically treated. Ruptures and piles will be treated, and a cure invariably guaranteed. The time has gone by when public opinion is against the specialist, or opposed to the man who advertises. The specialist who devotes his life to the study and treatment of of chronic diseases, is better qualified to treat them, than the man who given his time and attention to acute diseases. This proposition, no reasonable man will dispute; The man who advertises as a specialist, simply does what every successful business man does to secure business. It is just as honorable and just as important to say to the public through the press, "I make a specialty of diseases of the eye and ear or nervous diseases," as it is to say "I am a prepared to sell dry goods cheaper than any store in town," medical ethics to the contrary not withstanding.

Has Every Convenience.

Many a good physicians is eking out a miserable existance today because he is afraid to say to the public, "I have made a study of some particular class of diseases and can treat them successfully." Men who leave the public to find out their office hours by climbing stairs and reading their announcement on the door. All this may be ethical, but it is nonsensical in the extreme.

The McChesney sanitarium will be advertised, not only at home, but throughout the state. It will be conducted by men who believe in advertising, and who also believe that it is just as legitimate in the medical profession and in merchantile business. It will be manned by a staff of physicians thoroughly competent to treat chronic diseases. In short the management believe that the city not only needs this kind of an institution, but that the citizen will appreciate it.

Dr. McChesney will occupy his office in the Wilcox block until the first of April, and after that date will be found at his new quarters in the Windsor. The house will be used as a sanitarium, and will also be the headquarters of the Dr. McChesney Medicine Co. recently incorporated. The fact will be recognized that Dr. McChesney is permanently located here

SMART AND ENGLISH.

NEW WORDS OF PRAISE.

The Following Testimonial Speaks For Itself—It Is a Very Strong One.

CLINTON, JUNC., Wis., March 15, 94.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN: For the past five years I have been troubled with catarrh and deafness. One of my ears was completely deaf, and it was difficult for me to hear a conversation. Hearing of Dr. McChesney and his success in treating catarrh and deafness, I consulted him and for the past two months have been under his treatment. I am pleased to state that during that time I have been greatly benefited. My catarrh condition is greatly improved, and my hearing is much better than it has been for years. I can hear readily a conversation in an ordinary tone of voice. I cheerfully recommend Dr. McChesney to all who are suffering from catarrh in any form, believing him to be a specialist of rare merit.

News From South Turtle.

SOUTH TURTLE—The prayer meeting at Calvin Johnsons will be next week Thursday evening instead of this week. The Temperance social was held at John Crocketts last Friday. Will and D. G. Smith played down below Rockton last Friday evening and Charles Gault and James Murray at Poplar Grove. Rev. Dexter preached in the Murray school house last Sabbath. School will commence next week. CHIEFLY CHAFF.

Customer—Send a barrel of sugar up to my house and charge it. Grocer—Excuse me. The sugar trust is busted.

Professor—What a pity that this young lady has both her arms. She would otherwise be a real Venus of Milo.

Mazey—Do you believe it possible to tell fortunes with cards? Pipkin—Don't see why it shouldn't be; plenty have been lost that way.

Visitor—And which is the older, Tommy, you or Willie? Tommy—We're tie. Visitor, mystified—What do you mean by tie? Tommy—We're twins.

Mrs. Gumpps—What do you think of this? Professor Scraper says women make better violinists than men? Mr. Gumpps—Of course. They can't make so much noise.

Bliffers—Can't you run that typewriting machine without making such a terrible racket? Whiffers, who has a desk in the same office—Not when I'm writing to a man who called me a fool.

"Oh for some new-coined name by which to call him! Oh, for some name no other lips could give!" was the prayer of Violet until she married him. Now she is content to call him Old Beeswax.

Housekeeper—I don't see why a big, able-bodied man like you should be begging for a living. Tramp—To tell yeh th' truth, mum, folks is becomin' so hard-hearted that a gent has got ter be big an' able-bodied to beg without gettin' hurt.

"Perkins," said the little girl on Prairie avenue, "aren't you my nurse?" "Yes, Miss Florry," answered the middle-aged matron. "Then I want you to go in there where the doctor is," said Miss Florry, imperiously, "and be vax'nated in my place!"

GOOD MEN NAMED BY REPUBLICANS.

BIG CAUCUSES MADE NOMINATIONS LAST NIGHT.

Strong Tickets Were Named in Each Ward, and From the Interest Taken in the Primaries, Their Election Is Morally Certain—The Candidates Selected.

The republican caucuses were held in the several wards of the city last evening. They were much larger than the usual caucuses and might more properly be called meetings, as never before in the history of the party in Janesville have such large gatherings been witnessed at republican caucuses. The contest was centered on the candidate for city treasurer and while it was exciting in the extreme, bringing out the full strength of all candidates, the best of feeling prevailed, and the result will be accepted as the expressed wish of the majority.

Candidates for ward offices were also nominated in each ward. These in each case are exceptionally good nominations, and indicate that the republicans are determined to show a bold and united front at the election. It is morally certain the republican ticket is a winner. The work in the several caucuses resulted as follows:

FANNY RICE COMES HERE TONIGHT

"A Jolly Surprise" Will Cause a Janesville Audience To Laugh.

Fanny Rice and her peerless company will appear at the Myers Grand to-night. Everybody knows Fanny Rice, and every theater-goer knows what an excellent theater performance will be furnished to those who are fortunate enough to attend. Miss Rice's reputation has preceded her here, and she hardly needs an introduction to our readers. The fact that after three years on the road with the Carleton Opera Company and another three years at the New York Casino, she started on a starring tour which has proven one of the most successful in the history of the stage, speaks volumes for the clever little lady. It is impossible to sit through a performance of "A Jolly Surprise" without indulging in peal after peal of hearty and wholesome laughter. This may appear to be a broad statement, but our advice to all, asceptics and dyspeptics is, "Go and be convinced."

NEW PANTOMIME OF "ROBINSON CRUSOE"

ONE OF THE LATEST OPERATIC PANTOMIMES.

It Is Now Amusing the Critical Theater Goers of London—The Play Has Many Good Parts—History Repeated in Satire.

[London Theatrical Letter.]

THE FIFTEENTH annual pantomime "Robinson Crusoe" at the Drury Lane theater is attracting the usual big crowds.

Sir Augustus has a hobby for processions, but the "History of England in Twenty Minutes" is an excellent idea. William the Conqueror lands at Hastings, and Rufus is duly plugged by an arrow off stage prompt side with every regard for historical tradition. King John signs the Magna Charta with a long pen that looks like a disused yard measure; and our native stock of monarchs follow in turn till an imitation Victoria Regina is revealed at the close and is greeted with hearty cheers. That is, I suppose it was an imitation of her majesty; but Sir Augustus is such a wonderful man you never know what he mightn't do.

FROM ROBINSON CRUSOE.

The title "Robinson Crusoe," a title, I believe, that has been used before in connection with a story book or something. However, that doesn't matter. The story as developed here is original enough in all conscience. Robinson, it seems, wasn't a rough, bearded man after all, but a pretty little lady who is called Ada Blanche on the program. Then there are the brothers Poluski. These gentlemen are not mentioned in De Foe's narrative, but they have a pretty good armful of the present version, and for something like the first ten minutes they monopolize all the laughing power in the house.

Crusoe goes on board ship. You see, if he hadn't gone on a ship he couldn't have been wrecked and there wouldn't have been any stories told about him. So he has to go on board ship, and when the wreck comes, advantage is taken of the fact to give us a glimpse of the bottom of the sea and what goes on down there. According to Sirarris it would appear that a large number of young ladies meet there for occasional dances in their very best clothes, and the scene as represented on the stage is really very beautiful. I should imagine that the ballet ladies at Drury Lane must receive extremely handsome salaries, though it is true they work very hard. Still, I work pretty hard myself, but I can't afford to wear three or four diamond rings at once.

Miss Marie Lloyd is Crusoe's sweetheart Polly, so she is; and she works at high pressure to amuse the children—for whom pantomimes are supposed to be produced. There comes a time when Polly, like all other good little girls, has to go to bye-bye, and lest there should be any doubt as to the thoroughness of the production, the stage is turned into Polly's bedroom.

Polly sits down, and with lazy nonchalance takes off the bodice of her dress, and with the same air of weariness unties a string in her waist somewhere and waits for a minute, raising her arm, and unties another string. Then the people in the first row of the pit began to stand up and lean over the barrier, and then the children in the boxes sat back while their fathers crowded to the front. Then Polly reached for her nightdress and put it over her as she sat in the chair, and as soon as arrangements were completed she got up hurriedly and skipped into bed amid loud and prolonged cheers.

BISMARCK.

One of the Canine Family of Great Danes.

The Great Dane dogs which Bismarck takes with him on all his walks, and that are seen lying at his feet in pictures, are very gentle. They have the softest mouths in the world and will not harm any one. In fact, a Great Dane dog does not make the best watchman because he is so gentle. There are a few of these noble dogs in this country.

One day, not long ago, a Great Dane owned by a young girl was crossing Central Park, New York, when a laborer passed with a pail of beer. Instantly Bismarck, as the dog is named, ran after the man, and sticking his nose in the pail, drank it almost dry with two or three laps of his big tongue. The laborer was so frightened that he dropped the pail and ran. Bismarck is as tall as a Shetland pony of small size, and is a sort of drab in color. He is the prettiest Great Dane in this country.

CORBETT AND JACKSON.

Latest Developments in the Search for a Place to Fight.

There have been many reports of localities offering large purses for the Corbett-Jackson fight, and some of these are evidently made in good faith, but the most solid looking proposal comes from Mount Clemens, in Michigan. The following dispatch was received by Parson Davies last week. It is the report of the action of a committee authorized to take the necessary steps to secure the fight.

"Matters are shaping satisfactory. Eminent counsel doubtful about Strawberry island being in this state, as it is middle ground made during the past few years. Protection ample. Committee, every one of whom is perfectly responsible, are willing to guarantee purse of $45,000 and training expenses. E. R. EGNOW."

Mr. Davies met some members of this committee in Detroit, and he appears to be impressed with their earnestness in the matter.

"Parson" Davies has received a cablegram from Lord Lonsdale, who is taking exceptional interest in the match, and he says he will try to raise a purse in London for the fight. It is understood that neither of the fighters will agree to go across the water to box for a smaller purse than £5,000, which, allowing for the expenses to be incurred in taking the parties over, would mean less than $20,000 in this country. Lonsdale fully understands that and the offers, if any are made, will undoubtedly exceed that figure.

The "London Sportsman" says it learns on the authority of a friend of one of the principals that Jackson and Corbett have no idea of attempting to settle their contest in the United States. They do not care to be badgered by clubs and authorities as was the case in the Mitchell-Corbett match. The event is almost certain to be settled at the National Sporting club in London.

THE KENNEL.

The New York Collie club's newly elected officers are: President, Jenkins Van Schaick; vice presidents, T. H. Terry and J. Pierpont Morgan; secretary and treasurer, J. D. Shotwell.

Count Howard, one of the most prominent English setters in the country, is dead. Pneumonia was the cause.

The rumor has gained some credence that the Philadelphia Kennel club has been prevailed upon to make a change of dates for its proposed show at Tattersalls to those claimed for the abandoned St. Louis show.

There is a probability that the American and Canadian Kennel clubs will arrive at some pleasant, reciprocal understanding whereby a mutual method of handling dog affairs will be agreed upon and a set of universal rules adopted which shall cater to the best interests of dog men on both sides of the border.

Life or Death!

It is of vital importance that it should be understood by persons whose kidneys are inactive that this condition of things is finally indicative of a state of the organs where life hangs in the balance. Bright's disease, diabetes, albuminuria are all diseases of a very obstinate character in their mature stage, and all have a fatal tendency. They often baffle the most practised medical skill, and the most approved remedies of materia medica. But opposed at the outset—that is to say, when the kidneys begin to discharge their function inactively, with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the dangerous tendency is checked. Very useful also, is this household medicine for those ailments of common occurrence, constipation, biliousness, dyspepsia and nervousness. It is a safeguard against malaria and averts chronic rheumatism.

A Whimsical Chap.

Once tried to quote Bulwer (was it Bulwer?) and said, "Great oaks from little toe corns grow," and altho' he didn't exactly quote he got there, got there as it were, with both feet, at least with a part of both.

"Toe be or not to be,' said Shakespeare, (or Bacon?) and he toe, may not be far off. Foot it over hill and dale, 'til you are weary and footsore, and you cannot find such bargains as we offer in building sites, Homesites, for on these and the prices of the same and terms, too, we always did "toe the mark." For some reason we are this spring getting onto the goods, the prices and the terms with both feet. And so, with Hamlet we soliloquize.: "The wonder grows", why people are not "up in arms" when the prices we quote are looked into. You can get a home, if you wish, so long as we are in the business; hard times don't count. If you are not earning so much money as you did last year, we will meet you; it don't matter.

Homesites and Homes are our fad; to help people get 'em is what we are on earth for, this time.

The main secret, we suppose, why we always get the major part of the real estate trade going, is that we own a large part of the property that we offer. Another part of the secret is, we deal every time so that our customer sends to us his or her friend when they want to deal.

Our beginnings here were not large, but so true it is that "Great oaks from little acorns grow," that the "birds of the air" have their homes,—build their nests,—in the result of our grain of mustard seed. Come over and roost with us. Yours very truly,

GEO. L. & SARAH H. CARRINGTON.

AS JERE MURPHY SEES IT.

Thanks to the early advent of spring there are other blue jays in town than those interested in the roster case.

That other Kentucky girl, the Star-Eyed Goddess of Reform, would also have public sympathy with her cause if she would begin an action for breach of promise against the remainder of the democratic party at this time.

Chairman Wall reckons with wise discretion. It is going to be much easier to demonstrate this year that the Wisconsin democracy cannot win without the aid of his genius than it would be to prove that the Wisconsin democracy can win with it.

In refusing to investigate the charges that senators speculated in sugar stocks while tariff legislation was pending, the United States senate displayed something akin to the high-minded statesmanship that must have actuated Governor Peck when he hoped to obliterate the roster jobbery by keeping the contract secret.

When The Milwaukee Journal stated that "the acquittal of Daniel Coughlin will convince a large number of people that it is the unexpected that always happens," it doubtless used a different process of reasoning than that which satisfies it in advance of the trial that a verdict to the effect that Governor Peck, et al, did not conspire to defraud Tracy and the Dows would acquit the state officers of the charge of conspiring to defraud the state—Madison Journal.

REY EL SANTA ANITA

Will Be One of the Contestants in This Year's American Derby.

The name of Rey El Santa Anita would look well in the list of American Derby winners beside those of Volante, Emperor of Norfolk, Spokane, Uncle Bob, Carlsbad and other animals that have added this classic to their laurels, says the Chicago Post. And horsemen are admitting the possibility of "Lucky" Baldwin's candidate doing the distance this year and beating his field. Those who say Rey El Santa Anita win the Lake View handicap at Washington Park last year, when he romped in ahead of Clara Bauer and Ed Corrigan's promising colt Vassal, heard considerable talk in the paddock about "Lucky" Baldwin's claims for the colt. Secret trials had been given the fine looking son of imp. Cheviot, and it was even said that he had worked five and a half furlongs in 1:05, which, of course, was considerable for even the most enthusiastic to believe. So persistent was the Baldwin crowd in declaring that the colt was of good mettle and really a deserving horse that the "inside betters" had considerable money up on him at long odds to win the Lake View. It was a more pleasing surprise to these backers than the reward of following form.

REY EL SANTA ANITA.

THE TURF.

Jimmy Lambley has signed to ride for Marcus Daly at $3,500 for the season.

O'Neil and Eckert of Chicago have laid $20,000 to $500 against George V. Hankins' horse, Danton, for the American Derby.

D. J. Hume of Paris, Ky., sold to J. W. Mills of Boston the pacing mare, Blanche Louise, with a record of 2:10, by Red Wilkes, for $5,000.

John Hunter, chairman of the board of stewards of the recently organized New York Jockey club, has written President Van Kirkman of Nashville a letter in which he invites the committee appointed at the last meeting of the turf congress to take steps to bring about a national jockey club to meet the board at an early day.

JUST IN TIME.

A Lucky Discovery and Its Results.

There is probably no happier woman today than Mrs. A. D. Seitz, of Whitestone, L. I. She has lately attracted great attention, not only in her own town but for many miles around. As it is a subject which will most deeply interest everybody, she has been induced to make her experiences public. She writes the following letter to her fellow workers:

"I had suffered for three years or more with nervous prostration, nervous weakness of the heart and kidney disease. I was treated by different doctors, who told me that as I grew older my heart would grow weaker. I was giving up all hope of getting better and about made up my mind I could never recover.

MRS. A. D. SEITZ.

"I heard of the wonderful cures being performed by Dr. Greene's Nervura blood remedy and I determined to try it. I am very thankful I did so for it has cured me entirely. I was so bad I was afraid to leave the house.

"I would have bad spells at any time and would be very sick. I suffered awfully. I am well and strong now and can go away for days at a time. I feel like a different person and shall never be without Greene's Nervura. I strongly advise all the sick and suffering to take it.

Thousands of people who are not exactly sick are yet out of order or ailing in some way. They do not feel well and strong, do not eat or sleep well, are nervous and have no ambition for work or pleasure. You need the great spring medicine. Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. It will make you well. The spring is the best time to treat for any disease. Everybody needs a spring medicine and this is the best one known. It is the discovery of Dr. Greene, of 35 West 14th Street, New York City, the most successful specialist in curing nervous and chronic diseases. He can be consulted by all free of charge, personally or by letter.

SUCH IS LIFE IN CHICAGO.

The Mysterious Shadow That Shelters an Affectionate Young Couple.

On a certain west side corner lot in Chicago stands a tidy little cottage. The front gate is hardly 20 feet from the street lamp. On the side of the lamp next the gate is a round smear of black paint. A reporter was passing the corner one night, and he noticed that the street lamp was so painted that the deep shadow fell on the front gate of the lot in which stood the little cottage. This was a suspicious circumstance, and he felt sure there must be a story in it, so he asked the policeman on the beat, and of course the policeman could tell him.

"I know the girl very well," said the policeman. "She was mad enough when they put the lamp on that corner, because it made too much light in their front yard. The fellow works over there in the store, and they used to go to dancing school or something of that kind, and when they came home he would stand at the gate anywhere from 10 minutes to an hour. Of course after the lamp was there he couldn't do it without making a show of himself, so one night she told me he was going to paint the glass, and sure enough he did."

IN A RUSSIAN SANCTUM.

A Proofreader, Tired of Bad Copy, Gives a Lesson In Leaded Matter.

A tale of tragedy comes from Moscow. Managing Editor Choledkoff, of an unpronounceable newspaper; the name of which would be Gazette in English, was mortified beyond endurance one morning upon picking up the paper at his breakfast table to find that the fiend of a proofreader had left out about a third of the consonants that should have bristled through a complimentary notice of the czar.

The proofreader knew that was not in consonance with the paper's policy, and Editor Choledkoff knew he knew it. Therefore he was the more wrath. Had there been only a few of the rough corners broken off the names of some of the naval officers or the inspectors of police, or had the proofreader left off the "off" of the editor's own name, it would have been passable. But the bulling of a complimentary personal of the czar was a serious matter. The czar's feelings might be hurt, and he might cause the secret police to hurt the editor's feelings. Therefore the editor resolved for the four hundredth time to fire the proofreader.

And this time he was in earnest. But somehow the proofreader got the drop on him and fired first. The ball took effect in the leg of the table. Still the editor would not relent. He was determined to fire the proofreader, and the proofreader fired again. This time the ball entered the chest of the editor and passed through his lungs, and he died. Having dyed his hand with the blood of the chief, the proofreader then went in to get even with those of the staff who had made him the scapegoat of their excuses for bad breaks in copy for years. Standing in the door of the editorial room, he began firing right and left and winged three assistant editors before he ceased. Then he went out and surrendered to the police.—Philadelphia Press.

Death Dealing Weapons.

The Armstrong company has shown some very interesting experiments with the latest ordnance. A 6 inch gun was fired four times in 20 seconds and an 8 inch gun three times in 30 seconds. A torpedo was driven satisfactorily with cordite as a powder. There was a searchlight which would keep its beam upon an object no matter how violently the vessel rolled.

A 10 inch 30 ton gun, when it was fired, opened the breech screw by the recoil and wound up a spring, which, when released, would close the breech again. A 4 7-10 field howitzer anchored itself after the discharge by driving a spade shaped plate into the ground, after which its recoil was met by a jacket which surrounds it.

A quick firing field gun, which anchors itself in a similar manner, fired five rounds of shrapnel in 53 seconds. A 15 pounder mountain howitzer could be taken to pieces so that no part of it would weigh more than 200 pounds. It is screwed together in five minutes. A 6 inch gun, with light portable disappearing mountings for a long siege strain, could be taken apart so that no portion weighed more than three tons, 10 hours being required to mount it.

A 6 inch naval gun fired five times in 69 seconds, each time at a different range and target. A plate of special steel designed for a shield received rifle and gatling gun fire at 100 yards' range without a single penetration, while the plate hitherto used was penetrated at every shot, the gatling gun almost cutting it in two.—Chicago Herald.

Forgot His Temporary Name.

It is not an unusual thing for a man sojourning in a big city to come home to his hostelry so fatigued that he is not sure about his own name, but a guest in the Palmer House found himself in a stranger predicament than that.

A well dressed gentleman with a close cropped beard walked up to the cashier and asked for his bill. He wanted to make a train in 15 minutes.

"What is the name?" asked the cashier.

A startled look came on the guest's face, and mumbling some excuse for not answering the clerk's question he turned away and paced up and down for a minute or two.

Then he rushed to the register and scanned its pages eagerly, but without any apparent relief. The hotel people began to regard him with suspicion, but Mr. Townsend finally approached him kindly and asked what was the matter. Then the guest confessed. He said he had come to the hotel the day before and had registered under an assumed name.

"There are some people," said he, "whom I did not want to know I was here, but I have forgotten the name I put on your register."

The books were overhauled, and the name was found in time to enable the man to reach his train. The name he had used was M. M. Short, but he told nobody his real cognomen.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

The Heat of the Sun.

The mechanical energy of one square yard of the sun's surface would keep an ocean steamship under full headway. If all the coal of the earth were put into one large heap and kindled with an unlimited supply of oxygen for its combustion, it would not give out heat sufficient to replace that lost by the sun in one-thousandth part of a second of time. In the ball of flaming matter which we call the sun clouds of carbon are continually rising to the surface and remain there to glow with inconceivable intensity.

By the help of photography, aided by the spectroscope, the cloudy surface of the sun can now be examined. Previously the corona, which really is a crown of fiery tongues of flame, many of them 50,000 miles in length, could only be seen during an eclipse, but now we have photographs which show these flames to be ever darting forth and flickering from the sun's disk. These mighty flames occupy a quarter of an hour in performing a single flicker.—New York Ledger.

Cotton Factory Mechanisms.

Two very effective mechanisms in an improved form have lately been introduced in cotton manufactories, with a large gain in the facility and amount of work accomplished. One of these devices is a combination of feeder and opener, both built together, making one machine, solid, heavy, compact, with feed easily regulated by a lever on the side changeable in less than a minute and with a hopper holding about 350 pounds. Another device of special ingenuity is an automatic cleaning trunk connecting opener and breaker, having an arrangement which removes all dirt from the trunk as fast as it accumulates, being at once discharged into the dustroom by means of an exhaust fan, thus effecting a great saving in time and labor over the old way, besides the assurance that the trunk is always in a position to do the largest amount of work in the best possible manner.—New York Sun.

The Name Wisconsin.

The name of the state of Wisconsin is derived from a mixture of French and Indian. It was formerly spelled Ouis-con-sin, which means "westward flowing."

THE PRISONERS' FRIEND.

Mrs. Miller Tries to Save the Innocent and Reform the Guilty.

Mrs. Martha A. Miller has for many years been known in Chicago as "the prisoners' friend," and her face is well known in all the criminal institutions of that city. Her method of work is quiet, but effective. She visits a jail and talks with the prisoners, picking out those who have been deserted by their friends. For these she does errands and work outside the jail. She investigates their stories, and if they are found worthy of belief she goes into court and pleads for them. She collects witnesses, and it is her one purpose above others that no innocent man shall suffer.

She does not shun the hardened men of crime. "It is those," said she, "that I think it does most good to work with. Kindness accomplishes wonders with them. It is a thing which is strange to their beings. Every man is their enemy. They look at the world as a cheerless place. Their influence counteracted and kept away from others is what is most desired in a movement for reform."

The novitiate is sought after to be reclaimed before hope of virtue is gone. To enumerate the boys that have been persuaded from their evil ways by the "prisoners' friend" would be difficult. Mrs. Miller's work has not been entirely confined to prisons and jails. She is well known in the hospitals, where she has worked faithfully. She has gone among the slums and by force of moral suasion, in which she has the greatest faith, she has sought out girls and put them in the way of better lives.

Mrs. Miller is the pioneer prison reformer of America, and for 40 years she has been engaged in the work. In St. Louis in 1854, when she was scarcely 20 years old, a young man with whose parents she was very well acquainted was sentenced to a term in the penitentiary for larceny. She knew him to be innocent, but despite all effort he was taken to Jefferson City. Mrs. Miller drew up a petition, took it from house to house in St. Louis and obtained many signatures. Then she conveyed it to the state capital and laid it before the governor. Her first effort was successful. This experience with criminals interested her in the cause.

Spurred on by success, she determined to devote herself to work in the prison. She studied out the question on two lines—that poverty would diminish with crime and with it suffering; that the redemption of the hardened from their ways and the turning back of the tyro in crime to the beaten path was the only true kind of charity.

After a long work in St. Louis Mrs. Miller moved to Davenport, Ia., where she lived until she went to Chicago in 1882. Her fame had spread, and she held a place of honor among philanthropists. The first work Mrs. Miller did after she moved to Chicago was to begin an investigation of the penitentiary at Joliet. She called to the minds of the people the iniquity of the prison whipping post. Public opinion was aroused, and the whipping post was banished. Prison reform began in earnest. The work did not stop with prisons, but went to the lockups and jails.

Mrs. Miller does not believe in punishment for crime and calls the prison and the jail schools of crime and the alma maters of burglars and murderers. "Of course," she says, "there are some men who are vicious and a menace to society, and something should be done with them. Society has to be protected; I appreciate that. Insane asylums are humane and worthy institutions. I believe that penitentiaries make more crime. The more that crime is flaunted before the eyes of women and children, the more occasion there will be for punishment. Crime transmits itself. What we ought to do is to restrain and educate our criminal class. Prison discipline is worth more a thousand times than the grated cells, the high walls and the prison guards."

WHO IS IN THE FIELD AGAINST FATHERS?

STRIFE FOR THE CITY TREASURER'S JOB.

Probability That There Will Be Two Men in the Race Against the Republican Nominee—E. H. Davies Named as a Possibility—Geo. H. Bates Suggested.

Janesville republicans are now in line for victory. The ward nominations were made with an enthusiasm that speaks for success in ever syllable. Caucuses the magnitude of those held last night cannot indicate anything else. Democrats are flocking to the republican side of the fence as is shown by the membership roll of the Young Men's Republican club which last night contained nearly two hundred names. Among the signers are many democrats who have changed front and one who has been influential in the democratic ranks, not only signed himself but got five democratic friends to do the same. Already the opposition are trying to split the republican ranks, but the "A. P. A." war cry of the democratic campaign will avail nothing, as will be realized when the result is proclaimed. The republican ward nominations are made and every man on the ticket will be recognized as a staunch republican, entitled to the united vote of the party. The city ticket will be named tomorrow afternoon, and the Gazette is satisfied like good results will be found in the wake of that convention. The democratic organ is simply endeavoring to divert public opinion from the shortcomings of its own party, but will fail.

ALL REPUBLICANS NOT A. P. A.

Fourth Ward Correspondent Writes the Gazette Concerning the Statement Made.

EDITOR GAZETTE:—The article in the Recorder this morning does a great injustice to the Fourth ward republicans by saying that no one would be allowed to vote hereafter in the Fourth ward caucuses but A. P. A. Republicans. But it is about as correct as the substitute reporter with banged hair ever gets anything. Of course you cannot blame a good republican for not wanting the caucuses filled up with democrats as the Fourth ward caucus was last night. The knowing nothing Recorder should let up on trying to make people believe that no one but A. P. A's. were republicans. A FOURTH WARD REPUBLICAN.

ENTHUSIASM FOR JUDGE BENNETT

People Who Had No Opportunity to Sign The Call Plenty.

In the heat of the local campaign the judicial election is not forgotten.

"No one presented the call for Judge Bennett to me to sign," said Colonel W. B. Britton this morning, "consequently my name is not on his list, but you may say that the list published, although quite large, does not contain all of those who are supporting the Judge for re-election. I propose to vote for him anyhow."

"So do I," remarked D. Greatsinger, who stood near by. "I did not see the call, but intend voting for the judge just the same." A dozen or more whose names are not on the call, expressed the same sentiments.

POLLED 1006 VOTES AT CAUCUSES.

Biggest Attendance Ever Know In the History of the City.

Some idea of the large attendance at the several ward caucuses may be gained when it is known that there were over one thousand votes polled in the several wards. The exact figures as given by the tellers are as follows:

First ward, 242.
Second ward, 199.
Third ward, 305.
Fourth ward, 198.
Fifth ward, 62.

SALE FOR MANSFIELD BEGINS.

That Janesville is looked upon now as one of the most prosperous cities in the state of Wisconsin is again demonstrated by the announcement that Richard Mansfield has been secured for a performance at Myers Opera House, Saturday night, March 24, the management having succeeded in securing one of three open nights the eminent actor had between the closing of his engagement at the Grand Opera House, Chicago, and his opening date in St. Paul, Minn. Of course great risks had to be taken as Mr. Mansfield very rarely visits cities the size of Janesville, but Manager Shunk has often expressed his confidence in the patronage of Janesville people for A No 1 attractions and there is no doubt that his enterprise will meet with a packed house on the night of March 24. Seats can now be secured by applying at King & Skelley's.

Mushrooms attain their growth before appearing above ground. If the soil of a mushroom locality is carefully scraped off in the fall of the year, there will often be found full grown mushrooms, just beneath the surface, waiting for a favorable night to shoot above the earth. A cool, clear night in the autumn is the best, and after one of these typical autumn nights, fully grown mushrooms will be found in the greatest abundance, where, on the evening before, not one was to be seen.

The officers brought him back to Janesville last evening. The penalty for the crime is from one to ten years in the penitentiary.

The examination was held with closed doors much to the disappointment of a big crowd who had waited patiently for the trial. Two witnesses were sworn, Dr. Bennett and Mrs. Harry Morris, mother of the child, and their evidence was of such a character that the court decided to rule as above stated.

CHIEFLY CHAFF.

W.—How do you tell the age of a hen? V.—By the teeth. W.—But a hen hasn't any teeth. V.—No, but I have.

"How many foreign languages can your wife speak?" "Three—French, German and the one she talks to the baby."

Maude—You know that horrid Miss Squillers? Genevieve—Yes. Maude—Well, I got even with her yesterday. Invited her to my pink tea and she's a blonde that can't stand anything but blue.

Reader of Comic Paper, sighing—O, would that I were in the Alps, 3,000 feet up! Visitor—And why do you wish that? Reader of Comic Paper—Because no chestnut is ever found at that height.

Jenks—I handled $4,000,000 during my recent visit to the treasury in Washington. Binks—Ah! But I have had my grip upon $150,000,000! Jenks—Where! When! How? Binks—I once shook hands with Vanderbilt!

Pat has offered his school-fellow a bite from his apple, and is astonished at the large piece measured off by Mike's teeth. "Here, I say, hold on there, hold on!" Then, correcting himself, "when I say 'hold on' I mean 'let go!'"

"Do you see that man over there? Well, he's one of the famous men of the day." His companion looked at the speaker suspiciously. "Who is he?" he asked. "The man who was cured of catarrh?" "No; better than that. He's the man who hasn't had the grip."

Little Boy—They won't ever get me to give another ten cents toward a present of a book for the teacher. Mother—What went wrong? Little Boy—We got the principal to select one for her, and he picked out one that was jus' crowded with information, and she's been teachin' it to us ever since.

Fogy—Our paper to-day published the true story about that mysterious murder in Blank street. Hustler—Pooh! We printed the story two days ago. Fogy—But you were entirely wrong in everything you published. Every statement you made was as far from the truth as it could possibly be. Hustler—What of that, so long as we got the scoop on all the other papers?

Cradles in Zululand.

When it is remembered that the chief work of a Zulu woman in South America is tilling the ground to grow mealies for food and tobacco, and that during this occupation the baby is ever present, it will be readily understood that the cradle is an important item. As a matter of fact these women do this arduous work with a heavy, growing child slung across the back. With the poorer classes of women the cradle is simply a white strip of some soft skin, which is passed around the waist in such a manner as to leave a kind of pocket behind, and in this the child will peacefully slumber, unmindful of the sudden and abrupt movements necessitated by the work. The wife of a chief, however, will have a much more elaborate affair, but will carry the child in the same fashion.—Ladies' Home Journal.

No Split in the Ranks, and the Warcry of the Opposition Will Be as Mournful and as Fruitless as That of the Swamp Whipporwill—Want Judge Bennett.

E. H. Davies was announced as a candidate for the democratic nomination against James A. Fathers this afternoon. The fight for the city treasurer's job is liable to be badly mixed. Fathers will poll a rousing republican vote and there is every reason to believe in his success. He is likely to have two opponents to A dispatch was sent to C. C. McLean in Chicago, this morning, asking if he would take the democratic nomination if Murphy ran independent. Mr. McLean is attending the Mascontah Kennel club's dog show. He answered that he would make the race.

There was talk this morning of nominating George H. Bates on the democratic ticket if both McLean and Murphy stayed out of the fight.

Treasurer Murphy issued the following card this afternoon:

Believing that the action at the caucus last night was not an expression of the republican party, I do hereby announce myself an independent candidate for the office of city treasurer. M. MURPHY.

SOME MYSTERIES IN INSURANCE.

Many Remarkable Cases of Swindling Brought to Light.

DEATH SUCCESSFULLY SIMULATED

The Remarkable Performances of an English Woman—How a Frenchman Took Charge of His Own Funeral—The Monson, Meyer and Austin Cases.

ONE of the most fertile fields of wicked ingenuity is the swindling of life insurance companies, either by simulated death or outright murder. The records of the insurance companies for the past 50 years furnish many instances of frauds, and three notable cases of recent date have attracted widespread interest. In the case of Lieutenant Hambrough, who was mysteriously shot in Scotland, Monson, who was charged with murdering him, has been acquitted by a Scotch verdict of "not proven" and is likely to collect the $100,000 insurance on the young lieutenant's life. The fate of Dr. Meyer, who is accused of making a business of poisoning men and women and collecting insurance on their lives, has not yet been decided.

A more recent case is that of John C. Austin, whose heirs were awarded $16,732.50 in New York the other day in a suit brought against the Mutual Reserve Fund Life Insurance association. In the summer of 1891 Austin insured his life for $15,000 and three days later was reported drowned at Coney Island. His clothes were found in a bathhouse, but the body was never found, and there was some unusual—not to say suspicious—circumstances connected with the alleged drowning. The insurance company was not satisfied with the proofs of death, and the heirs brought suit. At the trial the defendants produced a witness who claimed to have seen Austin in the Adirondacks a year after his disappearance and introduced a photograph of Austin in hunting costume alleged to have been taken in 1893. But the jury decided that Austin was dead.

Up to date the attempted frauds on life insurance companies are, first, the very rare one of pretended death, which may be artificially induced by certain drugs; second, false certifications through bribery or forgery; third, false personation of the applicant and deception of the medical examiner and substitution of a dead body. The only case of successfully simulated death on record occurred in England many years ago, and, strange to say, the same woman went through the simulated death performance on three distinct occasions between intervals of many years, and her "husband" or "father" or "brother," who was partner in the schemes, was the same man on each occasion. The pair were successful in each instance.

In the first attempt the man was a poverty stricken gentleman of the suburbs of London, then a gambling army officer of Queen square and finally a Liverpool merchant. Life insurance men in speaking of the case say that so successful a series of frauds by the same person appears wonderful at the present day, and that the woman either possessed that power of simulating death of which there have been a few remarkable instances in history or that the physician was bribed.

One Franz Tomatscheck in Berlin some time back was heavily insured. The funeral took place. But when a disinterment was had the contents of the coffin were found to consist of stone and straw, and it was ascertained that Tomatscheck, impelled by irresistible curiosity and disguised beyond recognition, had attended his own funeral.

Here is another and a most remarkable case of the same kind. In 1865 a wine merchant in Bordeaux, France, named Vital Douat, insured his life for 100,000 francs in the Paris office. Then he went to London. His widow a little later presented herself at the insurance office with the legal documentary proof of her husband's death. The company somehow "smelt a rat" and investigated. It seems that when Douat went to London he put up at Ford's hotel under the name of Roberti. While there he got a French waiter to write him out a certificate in English, purporting to be signed by Dr. Critti, to the effect that Vital Douat had died on the 29th of November, 1865, of aneurism of the heart.

This certificate was presented to the register of deaths at Plaistow by Douat himself. The certificate was registered, it being stated that the body was then lying at 23 Ann street, Plaistow. On that very day Douat procured a certificate from the register of deaths, and thereupon the sexton of St. Patrick's cemetery at Low Layton ordered a grave to be dug. Douat under the name of Bernardo then paid the burial fee and designated the following Sunday for the funeral. He then under the name of Rubini coolly went to an undertaker and purchased a full size coffin, in which he placed a thick lining of lead. Douat had the coffin conveyed to the cemetery from a certain house, he himself being the chief and only mourner. In the chapel of the cemetery, Rev. Father McQuaid officiating, the "remains" of Douat were consigned to the earth.

JOHN C. AUSTIN IN HUNTING COSTUME. (From the photograph shown in court.)

It was Sergeant Druscovitch of the London police who found all this out. But when the sergeant made his discoveries Douat had come to this country beyond his reach. Douat was doomed, however. In 1866 he went to Antwerp, where he attempted to obtain from insurance companies a big sum of insurance on goods shipped on a vessel. He produced invoices representing that the cases and barrels contained $50,000 worth of cloaks and laces. The cases got ignited on the deck, and, lo and behold! they developed into two barrels of tar, and the cases were found to contain rosin, chips, alcohol, powder and charcoal. He was sentenced to death, but the French government claimed him under the extradition act, and for his attempted fraud on the Paris Life Insurance company he was sentenced to penal servitude when it got him.

Here is an interesting drowning case: D. K. Boswell of Muncie, Ind., on Sept. 15, 1871, started for St. Louis with his wife. He purchased two tickets for $3,000 each, good for 10 days, of the Railway Passenger company of Hartford. His life was insured for $10,000 in the Franklin Life of Indianapolis. He was president of the local board of the company at Muncie, and he was so highly thought of that he was not only made president of the board, but when he insured his life for $10,000 the company did not ask for a cash payment of the premium or the policy, but took his note for six months. Boswell and his wife on Sept. 22, 1871, left St. Louis on the steamer St. Luke. At midnight Mrs. Boswell gave the alarm that her husband had fallen overboard while sick. "I saw Mr. Boswell falling backward and overboard," she said. "I sprang to catch him where he sat on the rail with one arm round the stanchion, but could not. I saw him reach the water, there was a splash, and all was over." Search for the dead body was made. It was never found. The agent of one of the life companies James Boswell had insured himself in wrote to the company, "Boswell was one of our best citizens, of the best habits, respected and esteemed by all who knew him."

The Franklin company was sued by the widow. The verdict was in her favor for $11,000. This was set aside and a new trial granted. Boswell had now been "dead" three years. The case was again to come up. This was in 1874. About this time there was Judge I. S. Howe in Galesburg, Ills. He was playing croquet with some ladies one day when two gentlemen recognized him as the long lost Boswell. He admitted it and suddenly went south, leaving his trunk as security for a loan of $200.

It was plain that Mrs. Boswell was in the scheme, as it was proved that she had visited "Judge Howe" in Galesburg and had passed there as his neice. She was arrested, tried and convicted and sentenced to prison. Boswell was captured in Michigan in July, 1874, and escaped punishment on the technicality that a man and wife could not conspire.

Here is a case that completely outdoes Meyer if he is guilty of what he is charged with: William Palmer lived in Rugely, a little town on the line of the Northwestern railway, England. In 1856 he was a fine looking man, 35 years old. He married the beautiful daughter of Colonel Brooks of the East India service. The girl's mother had received from the colonel a life lease of his estate. Palmer was a fast liver. He loved horse racing and had a private laboratory where he made various chemical experiments. When short of funds one day, he appealed to Mrs. Brooks. She went to live with her daughter at once. She died suddenly four days after she reached the Rugely home. By her death Palmer's wife became owner of the Brooks estate, but under his control. He now lived a faster life than ever. Four of his children, like Mrs. Brooks, died suddenly, with intervals of one or two years between the death of each. There remained one. At the mother's death the estate would pass to that little one.

Palmer had his wife's life insured for $75,000. A sporting friend of Palmer's, named Bladen, called upon him soon afterward to collect a debt of $8,500. He fell sick at Palmer's house and died. Palmer's "family physician" said the cause was cerebral fever. A year afterward Mrs. Palmer took sick and died. The "family physician" made out the death certificate, and soon afterward the London life companies paid the $75,000. Palmer then had his brother Walter's life insured for $65,000. The brother was a hard drinker. Palmer, the chemical experimenter, gave him gin to drink, and he died shortly. He then applied for the insurance; but, strange to say, when the companies refused to settle he never renewed the application. But Palmer was such a good man! No neighbor suspected he would do a wrong act.

In November, 1855, John Parsons Cook's horse won at the Shrewsbury races $10,000, beating Palmer's. The latter had bet heavily, and his losses were great. Besides he had forged notes to the extent of $65,000, and exposure threatened him. Cook was worth $60,000, and Palmer had obtained Cook's signature to many notes. He got Cook to visit his (Palmer's) Rugely house that month (November). Palmer gave Cook something to drink and gave him some pills. He died two days afterward. The "family physician" said the cause was apoplexy. The post mortem revealed evidences of poison. Palmer was tried for murder and found guilty and was hanged. The body of Mrs. Palmer had been by this time 15 months in the grave. It was exhumed. It was found that she had died from the effects of antimony, which was detected in all parts of the body. The body of the brother Walter was exhumed. It was found that prussic acid had killed him.

Palmer's high social position and the medical certificates had prevented the life insurance companies from suspecting any wrongdoing. Just before the revelations as to Cook's death Palmer had tried to insure the life of his groom, George Bates, for $125,000. Palmer, in his application, described Bates as a "gentleman of independent means." He had also at the same time tried to have the life of the postmaster of Rugely insured for $20,000. The denouement in the Cook case consequently saved their lives.

Temperance women of Norway asked the public authorities a short time ago to make it unlawful for women or girls to serve in public houses. The request has been granted, and at present an alehouse keeper cannot employ any other woman than his wife.

SOME REMARKABLE DREAMS.

A Warning and a Few Cases of Thought Transference.

A New Hampshire woodsman tells the following story, which he appears to believe implicitly: "This winter I was at work for Van Dyke at Connecticut Lake. The night was dark and rainy, and the wind howled and moaned in the tree tops. I went to bed at 9 o'clock. Directly opposite my bunk was a window that one could see out of. I could not sleep and kept rolling and tumbling. I think I must have got into a drowse, for I was awakened by a light shining into the window, and a woman's face appeared as if looking in. I am sure it was the countenance of my sister who died in Quebec two years ago.

"Strange to say, I was not scared. The light disappeared, and then again it shone in. This time the woman's hand appeared at the window beckoning me to come. I got up and pulled on my trousers and went to the door. By this time the wind had stopped blowing, the rain had ceased, and the moon shone through the clouds at times. Standing near the woodpile was my sister. I recognized her now. I stepped toward her, but she motioned me back, saying, 'Joe, don't work tomorrow,' and vanished. I saw no more of her that night. The next day I staid in camp, and before noon Bill was brought in dead. A limb had fallen and broken his skull. He and I worked together. My sister has come to save life once since. Boys, this is God's truth."

The following cases of suggestion in dreams are related in Kate Field's Washington: A lady dreamed that a man came into her room, poured some water into a basin, carried the splashing water to her bedside and began to sprinkle it over her. She awoke and heard a loud splashing. At first she was motionless with fear, but presently she lighted a candle and went to the basin, where she found a mouse making frantic efforts to get out of the water.

A young man dreamed that he was in his office, busy with a troublesome estimate, when a woman came in with a screaming baby and began to walk rapidly up and down the room, so that it was impossible for the calculator to remember his figures. Presently the woman thrust the child into his arms, and he was so startled by this that he awoke. But the screams still troubled his ears, for a mother in a neighboring room was walking about vainly trying to quiet a crying child.

Another incident appears to be a case of thought transference. Several years after the death of her husband a widow, lying awake one night, recalled vividly some scenes of her husband's last illness. Presently her daughter, who was beside her, awoke and said, "Oh, mamma, I have been going over in my dreams all the scenes of papa's illness." She then told her dream, in which the scenes were almost the counterpart of those that had been recalled by her mother.

THIS SETTLES IT.

The Hawaiian Problem Elucidated by a Pair of Chicago Philosophers.

"Well, there's still a good deal of talk about this Hiwayan business," said the man from Jackson boulevard after he and his neighbor had found a good place in a Madison street car, within earshot of a Chicago Record reporter.

"Yes, that's so," said the neighbor, "and I wish they'd settle it one way or another. It's getting to be darned tiresome."

"It would have been settled a long time ago if it hadn't been for that man Blount. When he landed those soldiers there, he might have known it would have caused trouble."

"Was it Blount did that? I thought it was this fellow Thurston."

"No; my recollection is that Thurston was the man who pulled down the American flag and came near getting into a scrap with—ah"——

"Lillikalani?"

"Yes, that's it. She wants to join the United States, I guess."

"No; I think you are mistaken about that. I haven't read up on it very closely, but it's my impression she wants to take all these fellows that overthrew her and have their heads chopped off."

"That's right, and Cleveland said he was willing, didn't he?"

"No, no. You see, Cleveland was simply trying to square things, and he wanted her to agree to let these fellows alone."

"What was it his business?"

"Well, you see, he was afraid some other country would jump in and get the islands."

"What if they did? From what I can hear the United States doesn't want to admit Hahway. There's only a few white men there. It's too far away anyhow."

"How far out in the ocean is it?"

"Oh-h-h, I guess it must be a matter of something like 500 miles."

"Humph! I suppose if they admitted Haweeah it would send in a lot of congressmen with feathers in their hair and grass tied around their legs."

"What's the name of this fellow that's over there now?"

"Willis, isn't it?"

"Yes, that's it. Now, what is it he's trying to do?"

"Well, from what I've heard he's trying to jolly up the queen and keep her from bringing a damage suit against Cleveland."

"Why, what did Cleveland do?"

"Don't you know? He agreed to put her back on the throne, and then when he failed to do it she claimed that she hadn't been treated right."

"That's so. I remember reading something about that. And Willis is over there now trying to square Cleveland?"

"That's it exactly."

"Oh, yes!"

"How do you think it will all end?"

"Oh, I don't know. I suppose she'll go on the lecture platform."

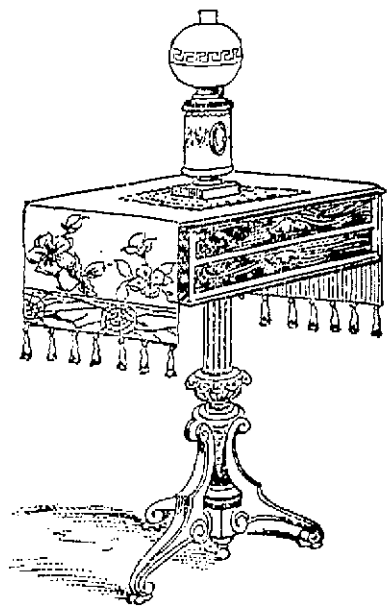

"I wouldn't be surprised."

Wingate—It must be a queer kind of etiquette they teach at that young ladies' boarding school Miss Flyrte has just graduated from. Walker—Why so? Wingate—Oh, nothing, only I kissed her in the hallway in the dark the other night and she said "Thanks!"

At the supper table Mr. Wade mentioned a tragic circumstance that he had read that day in the newspaper. A passenger on a trans-Atlantic steamer had fallen overboard in mid-ocean and had never been seen again. "Was he drowned?" asked Mrs. Wade. "Oh, no; of course not," said Mr. Wade. "But he sprained his ankle," I believe."

THIS TELLS THE STORY.

FROM ATLANTIC TO PACIFIC

Praises Come, Unlimited, Heralding the Success of One Woman's Work.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

From all sections of this great country. No city so large, no village so small, but that some woman has sent us her words of joyful thanks for health restored.

From San Francisco Mrs. Detwiler writes, from her Laurel Ave. home, that she unwisely left her room all too soon when her baby was born.

The result was an aggravated case of displacement of the womb that wholly prostrated her.

The doctors tried medicines, apparatus, and she suffered everything.

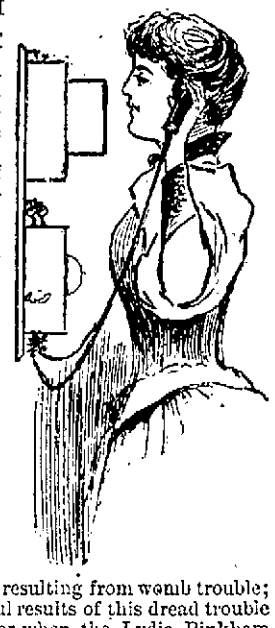

"I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. The effect was wonderful, and, thanks alone to her, I am now well."

Mrs. Kate Morris, 100 Mulberry St., New York, says:—

"For years I suffered with womb trouble. I was so sick and nervous that I could not stand or sit, the pains through my back made me crazy. I tried several doctors but found no relief. I was advised to try your Vegetable Compound. I did, and to-day I am a well woman."

From far-away Texas comes word from Mrs. Jennie Arthur of the town of Taylor:

"I did not know what rest was for months. I was so dizzy and faint at times I thought I was dying, and, oh, how my back did ache! I am a living witness of the miraculous effects of Mrs. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Relief came with it at once. I sleep allnight, and am now as well as ever in my life."

From the great state of Pennsylvania, Mrs. L. Travis, of Thurlow, tells a similar story of utter misery resulting from womb trouble; all the fearful results of this dread trouble was upon her when the Lydia Pinkham Vegetable Compound came to change the whole current of her life, and she ends up her letter by declaring: "I owe all to you." Thousands of other names are here. Let your faith lead you to the certain remedy for all your troubles. Your druggist has it for you.

BONYNGE SCORES ONE ON J. W. MACKAY

His Daughter Espoused to a Real English Viscount.

INTERESTING NEWS FOR MACKAY.

The Report Recalls Memories of a Social War in London Between the Rival California Millionaires and a Personal Encounter Between Mackay and Bonynge.

If John W. Mackay fought his former broker, C. W. Bonynge, all over the floor of the Nevada bank in San Francisco because Mr. Bonynge got his stepdaughter Virginia presented at court, what must be his sensations when he receives a copy of the London Times, marked perhaps by Mr. Bonynge's own hand, containing the announcement that Miss Virginia Daniel Bonynge is going to marry George William Viscount Deerhurst?

Thus soliloquizes the New York World appropos of a news item cabled from London. According to the English gossips, the engagement is a triumph of match making diplomacy. For several years it has been understood that the Bonynges were striving to make a big match for their daughter. Two seasons ago she was reported engaged to the Hon. Ronald Greville, only son of Lord Greville. Some difficulty arose as to settlements. Mr. Bonynge would not come down as handsomely as the Greville family considered was reasonable. Consequently the project fell through, and Greville has since secured another heiress.

Lord Deerhurst, according to his rank, is a much better match than the previous aspirant. By this marriage Miss Bonynge will become related to more than half the British peerage. Deerhurst is heir to the earldom of Coventry. His family traces its lineage back nearly 500 years. The viscount is cousin to the Earl of Craven, who married into the Bradley Martin family, but Thomas Coventry was an earl in 1697, while the first Earl of Craven got his title in 1801. John Coventry was sheriff of London in 1416 and lord mayor in 1425. Since then the Coventrys have been lords, keepers of the seal and embassadors and all that sort of thing.

Lord Deerhurst has had for a man of his position a most checkered career. For some time he was a diligent follower of the hounds until he had a very bad fall, sustaining severe injuries, which somewhat dampened his ardor for hunting.

Shortly after he came of age he went to Australia as aid-de-camp on the staff of Lord Normanby, then governor of Victoria. Altercations with notorious Bob Sutton, a Melbourne bookmaker, now known in England as Bob Sievier, who has since married Lady Mabel Brudenelle-Bruce, led to his retirement from Lord Normanby's staff. He then spent some time traveling about north Queensland and northern Australia amusing himself with sport and searching for a gold mine, which he could never discover, though he needed two at least to keep up his pace.

Returning from Australia, he settled down in London and led the usual life about town of men of his rank and position. With him, as with many others, it was the pace that kills. When his friends tired of furnishing money for his extravagance, he very pluckily went into the city and took a position in Wylie & Ponsonby's stockbroking office. There he meant to make a new fortune, but for the man who never did anything but spend money life in the city was very dreary.

He soon decided that the other end of town, with all its attractions, would probably turn out less expensive in the long run. Next he went to South Africa, spending a year there without finding the much need-

A gold mine. He returned to England last season. So, considering that Lord Deerhurst is but 28 years old, he has had a somewhat wide and varied experience.

Lord Deerhurst is of medium height and solid build, with fair hair and blue eyes, and quite a typical Anglo-Saxon. Mr. Bonynge, with his enormous wealth, is expected to put up sufficient money to start the young people in a thoroughly comfortable manner.

Mr. Bonynge is an Englishman and served as an orderly in the British army. He went to California in 1867 and was employed as a gardener. He got tips about the stock market, and being shrewd made money rapidly. When the mining boom began to subside, he went to New York, then to London. As an Englishman he could not very well get into the inner circle of society, so it is said he went as an American. The facts about his life and the social campaign documents circulated by enemies are inextricably mixed.

The Mackays went over, and it became evident that London wasn't big enough to hold the two families.

In June, 1888, Mr. Bonynge got Minister Phelps to present his family at court. Then the fuss began. Some roving traveler had been in San Francisco while Mr. Bonynge was there and wrote to The Morning Post over the name of Publicola to know if it was right for an Englishman to go to the United States, make a lot of money, return and have his family presented, and especially his daughter Virginia, calling her Miss Bonynge when as a matter of fact her name was Daniel.

The Mackays had nothing to do with this, of course! Nor had Mr. Bonynge anything to do with stories that began to appear in other newspapers about California millionaires who put their feet on their dinner tables and picked their teeth with bowie knives.

Mr. Bonynge would not say that it was the work of Mr. Mackay, but he declared that at least $50,000 had been spent in a campaign of education against Miss Bonynge.

A book was printed in 1888 which told that Bonynge married a Mrs. Daniel while Daniel was in prison at San Quentin, Cal., on the charge of forgery, Mrs. Daniel having secured a divorce. In later editions it was murder and deadly assault. But anyhow, when Daniel got out of prison and found that Mrs. Daniel had married, his heart was broken, and he shot himself. Virginia, it is said, was his daughter.

These books were shipped to different London book houses free of cost. Newspapers printed the story, now one and now another. These were sent to private houses, one to the lady of the house, one to the gentleman at his home address and one to each of his clubs. As soon as Mrs. Bonynge made a new call one of these newspapers was sent around there by mail.

Late in 1888 the San Francisco Examiner printed an article which Bonynge thought libelous. The Examiner made an apology, but all the copies containing the article were bought up and shipped to London. People who knew the Bonynges are said to have been offered $5,000 for their pet charities if they would drop the acquaintance.

The Bonynges went up the Nile in the winter of 1889. Dispatches, with a Cairo date, appeared in San Francisco newspapers declaring that they had been run out of London.

Mr. Bonynge's story is that Daniel was once very rich, but lost his money and his mind. He married a Miss Stephens in 1868, and a year later his wife and babe, Virginia, separated from him because of his insane violence and went to Mrs. Daniel's brother in Yolo county to live.

Never afterward did the husband and wife meet. Two years later, under the delusion that he was being robbed by his superintendent (Galway), Daniel shot at him. Mrs. Daniel wrote to Galway asking him not to prosecute. Galway agreed not to if Daniel would leave the state. He refused, nor would he accept counsel. There was doubt of his sanity, but Daniel declared he would shoot the man who said he was crazy and went to jail, threatening to kill Galway if he ever got out.

Mrs. Daniel presented a petition to Governor Haight asking for her husband's release. This was granted. Daniel went east and slipped off the train near Battle Mountain. He wandered into the brush near Austin, where he was found. He was taken to the hospital, where he died two days later of the exposure. He never spoke and was not shot or wounded in any way.

His daughter Virginia was legally adopted by Bonynge when she was 5 years old, after he married Mrs. Daniel, and took the name of Bonynge.

Lots of stories were circulated as to how Mr. Bonynge got his "pull" with Minister Phelps and later with Minister Lincoln, but they all tended to strain the relations between Mr. Bonynge and Mr. Mackay. Jan. 27, 1891, the two men met in the private office of President Heilman of the Nevada bank in San Francisco. Mr. Mackay struck when Mr. Bonynge was not looking. Then they had it. Chairs tumbled over, inkstands flew, and the ink made long, black streaks on the wall. It was a regular possum and wildcat fight.

President Heilman said: "Gentlemen! Gentlemen! This will never do!"

That didn't stop them. Then he yelled at them to quit. That didn't stop them. Then he pulled at their coattails and tore their clothes. That didn't stop them. Then he called in a lot of clerks, who pulled the two men apart and stood them up in opposite corners, where they puffed and panted and called each other names.

Mr. Bonynge bore more marks of the encounter than Mr. Mackay, but he claimed to have "bested" him. That Mr. Mackay did not concur in this opinion appears from the following version of the affair which he gave to the press the next day:

"It happened in this way: Long ago I suspected Bonynge was the instigator of certain vile attacks upon Mrs. Mackay which appeared in certain papers in New York and London. Having had proof that this was true, I determined to punish him the first time I met him. Yesterday, when entering the president's room in the Nevada bank by the back door, of which I, as a director, have a key, I saw Bonynge sitting at a desk with Mr. Heilman.

"As I entered, Bonynge turned and saw me. He had a malignant look and made a threatening movement. I struck out with my right and hit him in the left eye. Then I hit him again and called upon him to put up his fists and fight like a man. But instead of fighting he fell and clasped me around the knees like a coward. His blood poured all over my pantaloons and upon the floor. Clerks rushed in and removed him. The sound thrashing he received he well deserved for circulating those stories about Mrs. Mackay. I'm not so handy with my fists as I used to be 25 years ago when upon the Comstock, but I have a little fight left in me yet and will allow no man to malign me or mine."

The Silver Lining.

She was a bright, light-hearted little woman, and when her husband failed in business and they had to give up their pretty house and go to boarding, she tried to make the best of it. For hours after receiving the sad news she sought some compensation for poverty, and all of a sudden gave a chuckle of delight.

"Oh, it isn't so bad being poor, after all," she laughed.

Her husband looked at her inquiringly. "Why?" asked he, grimly.

"Because," announced the little woman, confident that she had chanced upon a shred of the silver lining to the dark cloud—"because we won't have any servants to bother about."—Harper's Bazar.

Another Sister.

"And you cannot be anything more than a sister to me?"

"Nothing more."

"Then I will propose to somebody else."
